STEAM ROLLER IS OILED UP

And Ready To Work on the Underwood Bill.

COTTON SCHEDULE WILL BE REVISED

Before the Adjournment This Evening.

Leaders Among Progressive Republicans Believe Two of the Measures They Have Supported Will Finally Be Enacted into Laws. Congress Enters Upon What Is Believed To Be Home Stretch.

Washington, Aug. 3.—With the Democratic steam roller in good working condition it was expected today that the house would pass the Underwood bill for revision of the cotton schedule before adjournment this evening.

The measure imposes an average of twenty-seven per cent. ad valorem on cotton manufactures as against an equivalent of about forty-eight per cent. in the Payne-Aldrich law. On thread and yarns it fixes a duty of about fourteen per cent., as against thirty-two per cent. in the present law; on cloth, average twenty-four per cent., as compared with forty-two per cent.; ready-made clothing, collars, cuffs, etc., average thirty and twenty-five per cent., as against fifty per cent.; plush, velveteen, etc., average thirty per cent., as against fifty-four per cent.; curtains, table covers, etc., thirty-five compared with fifty per cent.; stockings, twenty, thirty-five and forty per cent., as against thirty and seventy-one per cent.; underwear, thirty, as against fifty-nine per cent.; webbing, etc., fifteen and twenty-five per cent., compared with thirty-six per cent.

May Become Laws.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Leaders among the progressive Republicans in congress today expressed the belief that two of the measures they have supported would finally be enacted into law. So far none of the progressive measures has been finally approved.

The two they hope for are the direct election of United States senators, and the publicity of campaign expenses of congressional and senatorial candidates. Both are now in conference, as is the LaFollette substitute wool bill.

The statehood bill, for admission of Arizona and New Mexico, will receive support of progressives when it comes up for a vote next Monday. The house bill, for resubmission of the matter to voters of the state, will probably be adopted.

On Home Stretch.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Congress today entered upon what a vast majority of members hope is the home stretch of the extra session. Both houses are cleaning up their legislative business so that if President Taft vetoes the wool and farmers' free list bills—which it is confidently expected—they will be ready to adjourn before August 15.

The last vote under the agreement in the senate is to be taken next Monday, on the resolution for admission of Arizona and New Mexico.

The Coffee Trust.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The so-called "coffee trust," according to Attorney General Wickersham, is nothing more or less than the Brazilian government which has cornered coffee and entered into an agreement to sell only to certain parties.

The attorney general said today that it was difficult to prosecute the "trust" because of its immediate connection with the South American republic, but he asserted that the department of justice was at work trying to find some legal loophole whereby this peculiar situation may be relieved and the price of coffee reduced

Information Refused.

Washington, Aug. 3.—While it was admitted here today that O. E. Harrison, special agent of the department of justice, has been investigating the alleged illegal combination between several coal-carrying railroads in West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania, and that the government expects shortly to institute suit under the Sherman act, information as to when this action would be taken was refused.

CABLE DECLARES ANARCHY REIGNS

New Orleans, La., Aug. 3.—The following cable was received here today by a large importing house from Port Au Prince, Haiti:

"Anarchy reigns here. General Firmin's following is a riotous mob. American and German interests without protection. Urge United States and Germany to investigate. Joint military occupation is only solution."

The company may submit the complaint to the state department.

FAMINE PRICES MAY PREVAIL IN LONDON

Strike of the Dock Workers Is Becoming Very Serious.

London, Aug. 3.—With a serious situation developing, the strike of the dock workers, a sharp rise in meat and provisions today came as a warning that the food supplies are short and that famine prices may soon prevail. As a result of last night's call for a general strike of all classes of London dock workers and affiliated trades, about 8,000 more walked out early today, bringing the total number of strikers to 20,000. The leaders predict that 40,000 men will be out tomorrow.

Ben Tillett, the strike leader, said today that the International Transport Workers' Federation is in sympathy with the dock workers of London and may declare a general strike. This would result in an international tie-up of all shipping between American and European ports.

Replying to criticisms that the strikers were threatening the people's food supplies, Tillett said:

"I care as little for their food as they care for ours."

OFFICERS OF FAIR MAY CALL GRANGE DAY OFF

Taft's Visit to Connecticut Fair Causes Friction.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 3.—The announcement that President Taft would visit the Connecticut fair in September led the officers of the state grange, strong opponents of Canadian reciprocity, to call off grange day, long a popular institution at the annual exhibit.

Today the managers of the fair stated that they would not care whether the farmers patronized the exposition or not.

Predictions were made both that the president would call off his visit and that the membership of the grange would repudiate their officers' stand.

Jeffries To Hunt Game.

Seattle, Wn., Aug. 3.—James J. Jeffries and his brother, Jack, have engaged passage for Alaska next Monday. They will hunt big game in the southeastern and southwestern portion of the territory.

BANKER ENDS LIFE IN CELL

Illinois Man Cheats the Law in the West.

PLUNGES A KNIFE INTO HIS THROAT

Because He Couldn't Stand Calumny.

Few Minutes Before Killing Himself, Much-Wanted Man Tells Newspaper Men That He Is Going Home To Begin Life Over Again and Live Down His Disgrace—Later He Is Found Dying in Cell.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—Carey Manker, the Pearl, Illinois, indicted banker, died today in the Emergency hospital. He never regained consciousness after the police found him in a pool of blood on the floor of his cell last night.

Manker had thrust a penknife into his jugular vein.

Before he plunged the knife into his throat, Manker had received a number of newspaper men in his cell.

"I am going back to Pearl," he told them, "and I'm going to stick it down. Down in my heart I feel the scorn and calumny, but with the knowledge that my acts were never with wrongful intent, I am going back to the old place in Illinois and make my fight. I'm going to start life anew. I know I can rehabilitate my fortune and reestablish myself in the hearts of the people who trusted me once."

Dead Man's Career.

Two hours later he inflicted the wounds from which he died.

Three years ago, Manker was a prominent and prosperous banker of Pearl, Illinois. He was president of the Bank of Pearl. He lost large sums of the bank's money on the various stock exchanges and later confided many thousand dollars in a man who was to market Manker's invention for preventing the robbery of bank vaults. This man, according to Manker, proved unworthy of his trust and when he saw that he could not make good his shortage of $50,000, Manker fled.

For three years he wandered through the West, striving to make enough money to pay his debts. Instead, he went from bad to worse and finally, hungry and haunted always by the fear of arrest, he gave himself up and declared he was willing to go back to Illinois for trial. An officer from Illinois is on his way here for him. Instead, Manker cheated the law by killing himself.

INSANE BARBER CREATES PANIC

Then Dies in Convulsions at New Carlisle.

A YOUNG AUTO DRIVER PARALYZED

Wapakoneta Man Has Stroke While in Machine.

Former Ohio Editor Dies in Iowa—A Veteran Poet and Dean of Magazine Writers and Educators Is Dead at His Home at Steubenville—Bowling Green Laborer Is Injured in Explosion.

Dayton, O., Aug. 3.—Patrons of the Staley House at New Carlisle were driven from their rooms by a maniac armed with a butcherknife. Charles Staley, a barber, crazed with drink, seized the knife and sought the lives of his own family and the patrons as well. People fled in terror and it was some time before Staley was overpowered and disarmed. He resisted arrest and slashed two officers before subdued. He died an hour later in convulsions.

Auto Driver Paralyzed.

Wapakoneta, O., Aug. 3.—Ralph Beerline, 25, while riding in an automobile with three other young men, suffered a third and fatal stroke of paralysis, dying shortly after. He was in charge of the machine when his hands fell limp at his sides, his head drooped and he became unconscious. None of the other occupants could operate the machine, but they finally succeeded in stopping it after a narrow escape from being ditched.

Veteran Editor Dies.

Norwalk, O., Aug. 3.—Ralph Robinson, active newspaper editor and publisher, for 33 years editor of the Newton (Ia.) Journal, is dead at his home in Iowa, aged 81. Mr. Robinson was at one time editor of the North Fairfield Gazette, this county. He started the paper to advocate the removal of the county seat from Norwalk to North Fairfield.

Veteran Educator Dies.

Steubenville, O., Aug. 3.—William A. Urquhart, poet and dean of magazine writers and educators in eastern Ohio, is dead, aged 86 years. He taught school in this part of Ohio over 50 years.

STATE OF OHIO GETS INCREASE

One Congressman More Allowed by Senate.

HOUSE BILL ADOPTED WITHOUT ROLL CALL

Burton's Amendment Tacked to Measure.

Under the Bill, Twenty-One States Retain Their Present Representation in Congress, While Twenty-Five Are Given an Increase of from One to Six Representatives More. Some Allowance Made.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The senate this afternoon adopted without a roll call the house bill fixing the number of representatives in the next congress at 433.

The first vote was on an amendment by Burton, Republican, of Ohio, striking out a provision that states shall be redistricted by the legislatures and providing that redistricting should be done in accord with the laws of the states. It was adopted, thirty-nine to twenty-eight.

An amendment by Root, Republican, of New York, to retain the number of representatives at 391, as at present, was defeated, twenty-three yeas, forty-six nays. An amendment offered by Gronna, Republican, of North Dakota, for McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, to make the membership 405, was rejected, twenty-two to forty-seven.

Under the bill, twenty-one states retain their present representation.

States Getting Increase.

The states whose representation is increased are the following:

Alabama, 1; California, 3; Colorado, 1; Florida, 1; Georgia, 1; Idaho, 1; Illinois, 2; Louisiana, 1; Massachusetts, 2; Michigan, 1; Minnesota, 1; Montana, 1; New Jersey, 2; New York, 6; North Dakota, 1; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 3; Oregon, 1; Pennsylvania, 4; Rhode Island, 1; South Dakota, 1; Utah, 1; West Virginia, 1; Texas, 2; Washington, 2.

Allowance is made for one representative each for New Mexico and Arizona

KINKEAD SCORES DIEGLE COUNSEL

Sharp Practices Cited by Columbus Jurist.

HE SAYS IMPROPER METHODS ARE USED

"Pressure" Brought To Bear on Juryman.

The Judge Declares He Exercises Discretion for Defendant, While Lawyers for Diegle Pursue an Irregular Course of Procedure Which Excites Court's Suspicion—An Appeal May Be Taken.

Columbus, O., Aug. 3.—Judge E. B. Kinkead, yesterday, in language which fell short of being sensational only through its cold, judicial construction, in overruling the motion for a new trial of Rodney J. Diegle, senate sergeant-at-arms, convicted of aiding Senator L. R. Andrews, of Ironton, in soliciting a bribe from detectives, and said in his opinion, that Diegle's attorneys had resorted to improper methods during the trial. He declared that "pressure" had been brought on Juryman John Macy Walcutt; that efforts had been made to influence the jury by innuendo and inferences, and characterized as "false and malicious" one statement concerning himself in the lengthy new trial motion.

Practically no spectators were in the court-room, drawn by the latest act in the long series in the legislative bribery drama. The one notable exception was Charles E. Munson, a leading business man, who was a member of the grand jury which returned the many indictments charging legislative corruption. C. E. Belcher and John A. Connor were alone at the defendant's counsel table. Between them, facing the court with intense earnestness, sat Diegle. At the state's table, Prosecutor E. C. Turner was alone of those who had won the conviction.

Some Anxious Men.

Waiting anxiously uptown were Senators George K. Cetone, of Dayton, and I. E. Huffman, of Butler county, who by the Diegle verdict were indirectly held to have been parties to the dictaphone conspiracy to solicit bribes. With them were Senator T. A. Dean, of Fremont, and C. A. Bond, of Cleveland, former Columbus mayor, jointly indicted, for an alleged bribe offer to John C. Drake, of Erie county.

During the day there were numerous conferences in the offices of Belcher & Connor. Those present explained that they merely happened to be in town, coming in time to board the special train for the legislative reunion for Cedar Point this morning. It is understood that arrangements had been made to furnish a larger bond for Diegle, in anticipation of appealing from a penitentiary sentence. The old bond was allowed to stand, throwing the combined defense into a panic of doubt as to the final outcome.

Judge Kinkead, reading his lengthy opinion, declared, as a preamble, that the new trial motion was irregular in many respects, as it seeks to bring upon the record things which can be shown only by a bill of exceptions.

"The defense can not bring upon the record many of the things which it does by means of this motion which are not just as they occurred at the trial," the court said.

An Irregular Course.

Rejecting the ground that Presiding Judge John W. Goldsberry, of Chillicothe, overruled the affidavit of prejudice, with its many charges against himself, Judge Kinkead said:

"There can be only one purpose on the part of counsel in incorporating this alleged ground into this motion, of which perhaps the proprieties of the case forbid further discussion by the writer of this opinion."

Discussing his reason for stoping Attorney Connor when reading in his argument the Chicago indictment against Detective Frank Harrison Smiley, the opinion says:

"It will be observed that in the examination of this witness, counsel pursued an irregular course, which excited the suspicion of the court."

Judge Kinkead, declares that he exercised discretion for the defendant and permitted the indictment to be read, realizing that it was a mere play by counsel for whatever effect it might have on the jury. He charges that counsel knew Smiley never was punished, and the court took action practically equivalent to nolleing the indictment and that the record offered was, on its face, not complete. This indictment was the occasion for the most heated clash of the Diegle trial.

Improper Conduct.

Connor, the opinion says, argued law points before the jury, not for the court, but for the effect on the jurymen. Citations offered on what courts have said about detective evidence resulted in this censure:

"Counsel was simply guilty of improper conduct in pretending to read what courts have said about what credit should be given to the testimony of detectives, when, as a matter of fact, he was reading it in the presence of the jury in order that it should have some effect upon them."

The court appears to believe that the defense caught itself by admitting John W. Davis as juryman. He was charged in the Walcutt affidavit with making derogatory statements about Diegle and his wife during the deliberations. Davis' acceptance by the defense, according to the opinion, was "no doubt due to the fact that his answers as to his past business and early acquaintance with the defendant were satisfactory to the defense." Davis and Diegle were boys together, and Davis was discharged as a policeman as a result of the street car strike mutiny.

Tour Announced.

New York, Aug. 3.—The failure of the proposed "reciprocity tour" to Canada has brought forth the announcement by the American automobile association that a tour to be known as the Glidden, will be held in October.

Politician Dead.

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 3.—Edward Murphy, Jr., formerly United States senator from New York and for years a potent factor in the affairs of the up-state Democracy in that state, died at his home here today.

SHIPS FROWN ON PORT AU PRINCE

Two Rebel Factions Now Control the Capital.

MANY ARE KILLED IN STREET BATTLES

There Seems Little Prospect for Peace in Haiti.

American and German Warships and Cruisers Send Detachments of Marines Ashore—Committee of Safety Is Organized by Diplomatic Corps and It Is Given Support by Warships in the Harbor.

Port Au Prince, Haiti, Aug. 3.—Without president or executive government and two rival revolutionary factions in control of the capital and threatening to fight for supremacy, there seemed little prospect today for peace and order in Haiti.

Since the forced retirement of President Simon, more than two score persons have been killed and many wounded in street fighting.

A committee of safety, organized by the diplomatic corps and having the moral support of the warships in the harbor, is in nominal charge of the city.

General Cincinnatus Leconte and General Antenor Firmin are both candidates for the presidency. Each has a large following of armed men. Neither of the leaders as yet has reached Port Au Prince.

Attempts to loot were put down with a vigorous hand.

The German cruiser, Bremen, early today sent a detachment of marines ashore and occupied the German consulate and two German banking houses. The American cruiser, Des Moines, and the British warship, Melpomene, also sent detachments ashore.

FIREBUG STARTS FIVE BLAZES IN CHICAGO

Police Are on Trail of the "Arson Fiend" Today.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—A firebug early today started five fires in the same neighborhood on the North Side, causing considerable property loss. Henry Schultz and wife were painfully burned before rescued by police. An officer saw the incendiary after he started the third blaze and fired at him without effect. Mrs. J. D. Miller saw the "arson fiend" when a nearby house was burning and asked him to call the fire department. "Let her burn," was his answer.

The police have a description of the man.

NONSENSE, SAYS MR. ROOSEVELT

In Attacking Action of New York Court of Appeals.

SAYS COUNTRY WON'T TOLERATE DECISION

Regarding Workmen's Compensation Act.

The Colonel Declares That Any Man Who Takes Opposite Ground to That Taken by Him on Article in Question Has No Right on Bench and It Is a Misfortune To Have Him There.

Lyons, N. Y., Aug. 3.—"It is simply nonsense to suppose that this country will tolerate permanently a line of action such as the court of appeals followed in declaring unconstitutional the workmen's compensation act," is the statement of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, made public here today. Other quotations follow:

"Four federal judges have written that they agreed with me that the action of the New York court of appeals is so utterly reactionary as to be an invitation to revolution. My plea is that a court act with ordinary statesmanship; ordinary regard for the laws, ordinary regard for the constitution as a living aid to growth, not as a straight-jacket; the rights of humanity and the rights of civilization.

"No man who takes the opposite ground to that which I have taken in the article in question has any right on the bench and it is a misfortune to have him there.

"Interpretation of the law must be made from day to day and the interpretation of 100 years ago must not be held immutable.

"The Republican party was formed to protest against the very view of the courts, reactionaries now insist we should hold."

These are extracts from correspondence between Colonel Roosevelt and Editor Charles H. Betts regarding the colonel's criticism of the action of the New York state court of appeals in declaring unconstitutional the workmen's compensation act. Betts, who is the editor of the Lyons Republican and a member of the state committee, took the colonel to task for his temerity to criticise the courts and received the above reply.

PINKERTONS NAB CLEVER FORGER

Prisoner Operates in Big Cities All Over the Country.

Cleveland, Aug. 3.—Charged with having perpetrated bank forgeries in fifteen different cities since his recent release from the Columbus, Ohio, penitentiary, Edward Funk, with an elaborate string of aliases is under arrest here today by Pinkerton detectives. Funk is declared to have netted himself thousands of dollars by forgeries in Cleveland, Boston, Providence, Brooklyn, Norfolk, Virginia; Pittsburg, Dayton and Toledo, Ohio; Detroit, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Omaha, Minneapolis and Kansas City. His particular method was to rent an office represent himself as the agent of some big manufacturing concern, and then get recommended to a leading bank on which he would cash a forged check.

Among the aliases alleged to have been used by Funk in the above cities were those of "Edward Stillings," "Edward Sawyer," "James Murphy," "Edward Welch," "E. A. Benton," and "J. E. Morton."

TENSE MEXICAN SITUATION EASIER

Emilio Gomez Retires from Portfolio of Interior.

Mexico City, Aug. 3.—The formal acceptance today of the portfolio of the interior by Alberta Garcia Granados, governor of the federal district, has relieved in a measure the tense situation precipitated yesterday by the sudden resignation of Emilio Vasquez Gomez, whose conduct of the interior department did not meet with full approval from President De La Barra.

Mounted police patroled the capital throughout the night, and troops were held in readiness in their quarters for any call to quell a riot. Revolutionary leaders, supporters, of Francisco I. Madero, led the march of protest against the president's palace when it was learned from Gomez that De La Barra had forced his resignation.

Madero virtually condemned the protest when he telegraphed the president from Tehuacan that the executive's action in retiring Gomez was approved by him.

DYNAMITING IS LAID TO UNION

Chicago Park Greenhouse Is Blown Up.

VALUABLE PLANTS RUINED AS RESULT

Money Can Not Replace Rare Flowers.

Blast Is Terrific and for Many Blocks Windows Are Broken and Sleeping Residents Are Hurled from Their Beds—Outside Sleuths Will Be Employed To Run Down the Dynamiters.

Chicago, July 31.—Dynamiters, believed by park officials to be in the employ of labor unions, early yesterday morning blew up the north end of the mammoth greenhouse and conservatory at Washington park. The blast was terrific and for many surrounding blocks in Hyde park windows were broken and sleeping residents hurled from their beds.

The building destroyed was 400 feet long, fifty feet wide and thirty feet high. It was built of iron, cement and glass and housed hundreds of rare plants that have been nurtured for years, among them a number of century plants

J. F. Foster, superintendent of the park, attributes the dynamiting to labor unions. He says there is a strike of the electrical employees and numerous warning threats have been made.

"The electricians employed in the park struck for more pay and shorter hours recently," he said. "Since then we have been running on open-shop principles. There have been warnings of trouble many times recently. I can not say positively who blew up the greenhouse, but the only persons who might have a motive for the wanton destruction are the striking electricians."

A Great Loss.

Mr. Foster estimated the loss at between $50,000 and $75,000, but said that money could not replace in years the valuable plants destoyed.

By attacking state property the vandals stand a chance of being captured. Apparently they are immune as far as the city police are concerned, as there have been a constant succession of dynamite outrages for the past five years with practically no arrests In the present case, however, the state officials will employ outside detective talent and hope to run down and punish the malefactors.

Thousands of citizens visited the scene of destruction Sunday and urged the officials to apprehend the dynamiters. Owners of buildings for a radius of five or more blocks in every direction, whose windows were destroyed, have no recourse out to foot the bill They also are especially anxious for the punishment of the dynamiters.

DECLARES OFFICIALS ARE LAYING DOWN

Attorney General Wants Grafters To Disgorge Public Funds.

Columbus, O., July 31.—Attorney General Hogan is today preparing a letter to the prosecuting attorneys of the eighty-eight counties of Ohio calling their attention to the fact that a good many of them have been "laying down" on the state bureau of accounting, by failing to force grafters and others to disgorge public funds after the state examiners have discovered the facts.

In a number of counties, state examiners have found discrepancies amounting to thousands of dollars, and have reported the persons who took the money illegally, in most cases county officials; and have then left it to the county prosecutors to recover the sums from the guilty parties. Too often, however, the prosecutors themselves belong to a political ring and the influence of the rings with the prosecutor has been strong enough to keep him from bringing suits or prosecuting those who have made away with the public's funds.

Hogan tells the prosecutors that he will detail men from his own department to do this work unless they make a better showing The auditor of state will furnish Hogan with a statement showing just how much money is still in the hands of grafters and which the prosecutors haven't made efforts to recover.

CLOSING HOURS OF THE MARION CHAUTAUQUA

Thousands Turn Out To Hear Colonel W. J. Bryan.

SUNDAY IS IDEAL FOR GREAT GATHERING

"The Prince of Peace" Is Subject of Colonel Bryan and He Holds the Interest of His Auditors Closely. Ex-Governor Robert B. Glenn Delivers a Fine Address.

Sunday marked the close of the second annual assembly of the Marion County Chautauqua association with record-breaking crowds and addresses by two of the country's foremost platform celebrities—Colonel William Jennings Bryan and Governor Robert B. Glenn.

Of the two, Byran, the matchless orator and idol of millions of Americans, proved the greater attraction More than 5,000 people heard him in the afternoon deliver his celebrated lecture-sermon, "The Prince of Peace."

In introducing the great lecturer, George B Christian, Jr., declared that it had been his good fortune on many prior occasions to hear the speaker of the day discuss national problems, and that he was pleased and gratified to introduce him to such a magnificent audience, an audience which would hear him speak without political thought or bias on his great theme, "The Prince of Peace." He referred to the speaker as being of the "highest type of manhood."

Colonel Bryan Greeted.

When Colonel Bryan stepped forward there were loud cries of "Sit down in front" Many people in the outer edges of the big crowd were unable to see the speaker because some in front of them were standing. A sea of snowy white greeted Bryan in the Chautauqua salute

"Ladies and gentlemen," Colonel Bryan began when order was restored, "I am very glad to present, this afternoon, my lecture on 'The Prince of Peace' to so splendid an audience with all of its consideration and appreciation. I appreciate the interest that has brought you here to this Chautauqua You appreciate the opportunity that the Chautauqua offers to those who care to hear the message I have to present. I appreciate the cordial greeting and the kind words spoken by the speaker in introducing me, but it is not necessary to believe to enjoy them.

"It is necessary in politics to be over-praised by your friends because of the abuse one gets from his enemies.

Amusing Comparison.

Colonel Bryan got a laugh when he compared himself to the little homely girl, who, when told by her sweetheart that she was beautiful, retired to her room and thanked God that love was blind Continuing, he said he preferred to deliver his lecture on "The Prince of Peace" on the Sabbath day He said he gave other lectures through the week and usually delivered this one on Sunday. After good-naturedly joshing the Republicans a little, Colonel Bryan got down to the meat of his lecture. He said he had devoted the mature years of his life to the science of government, but that he was more interested in religion, because it was a more important question than government Government touches only a part of our life, but religion touches all of it He declared he liked to make political speeches, that he would make them without much provocation, but that he would rather speak on religion. He said he began making political speeches when he was twenty, but for six years before that he was speaking in the church and said he might be out of politics, but that he never would be out of the church.

An Advantage.

"I have this advantage this afternoon," Colonel Bryan said, "when I discuss questions of good government I must get a majority of the people to agree with me. When I discuss religion if I can touch one single heart for good, then I have not spoken in vain"

For ten years after he had entered politics, Colonel Bryan said he held aloof from the church for fear that his opponents would say he was trying to use the church for his own advancement, but he no longer did that, he said

The speaker said he knew of no real failure in life that was not traceable to a breakdown in the morals

"I shall not believe that this life is extinguished, the speaker said. If the father designs to touch with divine power the cold and pulseless heart of the buried acorn and make it burst forth from its prison cell, will He leave neglected in the earth the soul of man, who was made in the image of his Creator? If He stoops to give the rosebush, whose withered blossoms float upon the breezes, the sweet assurance of another springtime, will He withhold the words of hope from the sons of men when the frosts of winter come?

"If matter mute and inanimate, though changed by the forces of nature into a multitude of forms, can never die will the imperial spirit of man suffer annihilation after it has paid a brief visit, like a royal guest, to this tenement of clay?

God and His Plans.

"Rather let us believe that He who in His apparent prodigality wasted not the raindrops, the blade of grass or the evening sighing zephyr but makes them all to carry out His plans, gives immortality to the mortal."

Colonel Bryan told of his college career and its skepticism, when a young man usually thinks he knows more than he does know in this life. He studied the theories of creation, and there came a doubt, but he always found that something was assumed in the theory. Then he went back to the book of Genesis, and found there 'that in the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. "And, "Colonel Bryan said, "I decided to stand there and I have been standing there ever since. Every theory of creation assumes something to begin with."

The speaker scored the Darwinian theory and declared that if people wanted to select their ancestors among the monkeys they had a right to, but, he said, he had the same right to select his ancestors and he believed that God created man just as He had created everything else in the beginning.

Origin of Man.

"Some people argue that man is an improved monkey," declared the speaker, "and the monkey is a degenerated man and if the former is true, then why can not man be a degenerate monkey? But man has a mind and a soul as well as a body. The mind is greater than the body and the soul is greater than the mind. Some claim that the ape is older than man and man is merely an iproved ape, but the ape is still an ape."

Colonel Bryan spoke of the mysteries of life in the beginning and the mysteries of today which never will be explained. He spoke of the telephone and wireless telegraph. Because we can not understand the principle, is that any reason why we should doubt that one can really talk over a wire and send messages without a wire? He spoke of the chemistry of the vegetable, and said that if a man refused to eat anything because he could not understand how it grew, he would soon strave.

"But mystery does not bother us in the dining-room," the colonel added "It's only in the church."

The crowd to hear Colonel Bryan was by far the largest ever assembled under and outside the Chautauqua tent.

Lecture of Evening.

Delivering a pleasing lecture, ex-Governor Robert B. Glenn, of North Carolina, closed the program of the second annual Marion County Chautauqua, Sunday evening. Ex-Governor Glenn was heard with interest by an audience that filled the big tent to overflowing.

Promptly at 7 o'clock, Baker's Concert band opened a concert which continued until 8 o'clock The selections by the band pleased the big audience. Shortly before 8 o'clock, as the band was playing the "Star Spangled Banner" ex-Governor Glenn arrived with Hon. W. J. Bryan, Colonel Robert S. Seeds and W. G. Harding. As the band struck up "Dixie," a broad smile passed over the face of Governor Glenn and he waved his hand in token of his satisfaction.

Warren G. Harding briefly introduced the speaker of the evening

Governor Glenn, who was heard here last year, said as he came to the front with a broad smile on his face

Old-Fashioned Message.

"I come to bring an old-fashioned message and I hope I am speaking to an old-fashioned people I want to say to you that the remedy for the great problems of this country is not the enforcement of law, but the proper training of the boys and girls who are to take our places in the days to come If our boys and girls are improperly trained, sin will fatten upon the land and destroy the nation entrusted to our care. I cannot look down through the centuries like a Daniel and see the fall of nations, but I have faith and if the future men and women of this country are idlers, if they are impure and unworthy of trust, then the history of this land will be one of destruction. If on the other hand, the children are properly trained, the history of this nation will be one of great power and great wealth.

"One of the greatest needs of today is obedience in our children. When asked, President Taft said, 'the greatest danger of the country today is the non-enforcement of law.' I believe the trouble is that the people are becoming a law unto themselves They will do a thing if it pleases them to do so and if not they will not do it. How can you expect the children of the future to do as they should when you do not do as you should yourselves?

Train Your Children.

"Mothers, train your children to obey you. Show them by precept and kindness the proper way toward better things, and, if they will not heed, then try a little hickory cordial"

Governor Glenn emphasized industry, and declared if the nation was one of hoboes and idlers, crime would flourish. He advocated placing the idlers at work on the public highways, as is done in North Carolina

"Teach your children," he said, never to look down on any man or woman doing any work, however menial Those who make fun of these people are the ones who will go to the bottom first

"Patriotism is a quality which should be instilled in the minds of the children. We should love our neighbors as ourselves. Can you love your neighbor as yourself and make a drunkard of his son? Can you love your neighbor and take away the virtue from his blue-eyed daughter?"

Here the speaker referred to the workers in the cotton and cigarette factories, who work long hours for a bare living, making those already rich, wealthy to overflowing.

"Can we call ourselves Christians and allow such things to exist?" he said. "The laws allow the rich to become richer, while the poor are too poor to know what to do. I want to warn the Republican and the Democratic parties that if they do not do something, the people will rise and wipe these old parties from the face of the earth."

The speaker closed his remarks with a plea for character and Christian training.

CHAUTAUQUA NOTES.

Before leaving Monday morning for Orchard Island, about twelve miles from Bellefontaine, where he spoke Monday, Colonel W. J. Bryan breakfasted with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Day, old friends and former neighbors when they were residents of Salem, Illinois, Bryan's birthplace. The trip to Orchard Island was made by auto.

Many people came from the surrounding counties to hear the three-time presidential candidate, Sunday afternoon. A delegation of about twenty-five from the Jefferson club, of Columbus, headed by the club president, W. L. Boyd, and State Treasurer David S. Creamer, came up from Columbus in a special C., D. & M. car, arriving here about noon. Arrangements were made with Mr. Bryan for his appearance in Columbus under the auspices of the club, August 14.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, Dr. W. L. Davidson preached the morning sermon at the Chautauqua grounds on "The Bible and What We Should Do with It." Among other things Dr. Davidson advised: "Don't be afraid of marking your Bible. It's God's love letter to you. Commit verses of it to memory each day. Ask God to help you. Use it as you would use a novel, keep it on the reading table. Read it with a view to living it rather than learning it."

Kodak fiends were much in evidence Bryan day. While Bryan was still on the platform, a woman tapped a reporter on the back and asked him if he would ask Mr. Bryan to come to the rear of the platform. The reporter saw the kodak and shook his head. Then the woman took up a position in front of the automobile which was to bring the colonel back to town. She was determined to get his picture. There were others who were just as determined, but not so persistent.

Colonel Bryan received $500 for delivering his lecture here. Under his contract he was entitled to receive from $750 to $825, but he donated all over $500 to the Chautauqua association. According to his contract Bryan was to receive ten cents on every course ticket, ten cents on each reserved seat, the first $250 taken in at the gate, and half of all money in excess of $500. The colonel was so pleased with the attendance and the treatment accorded him by the management that he said he would take $500 and call it square. He stated that in some places in the past, where he had addressed over 5,000 people, he got less than $100 because the management simply "did" him and that the form of contract used here was simply to protect him from any such possible game.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF LATE CHARLES LEHMAN

Mr. Lehman Dies After Illness of Cancer of Stomach.

The funeral of Charles Lehman, a former Marion county resident who died at Mt. Carmel hospital, in Columbus, Friday evening, was held from his late home near Mt. Victory, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock Mrs. Theodore Couts and daughter, Wava, of this city, attended the services.

Mr. Lehman had been ill for the past six weeks, and Monday was taken to Columbus where he was operated on for cancer of the stomach He was about fifty-eight years of age and leaves a widow and the following children:

Mrs. Anna Kern, of Kenton, H. D. Lehman, of Mt. Victory; Stanley Lehman, of west of Marion; Charles, Ray, Arthur and Mildred at home.

The deceased was a farmer and for several years lived on the Big Island pike. He then moved to Morral, where he resided until a year ago, when he moved to near Mt Victory, where he has since made his home. He was a member of the Morral I. O. O. F. lodge.

FRED MORAN ASSAULTED BY ITALIAN SUNDAY

The Assailant Uses a Razor in His Attack.

Fred Moran, aged twenty-three, is confined to his home on Lee street as a result of a murderous assault made on him shortly after the noon hour Sunday. Moran had an altercation with an Italian, the latter assaulting him with a razor Moran hurled a stone and struck his assailant, but the blow from the stone failed to have any effect and Moran started to run. Just as the foreigner made a wicked slash at his head, Moran stumbled and fell, receiving the blow on his left leg near the knee.

The razor cut a large gash in the victim's leg, penetrating to the bone Before the Italian had time to do further damage, a friend of Moran interceded and stopped the trouble. Moran was assisted to his home, where surgical attention was given him, five stitches being necessary to close the wound.

Burns are best treated with olive oil on antiseptic cotton applied as hot as it can be borne. This is also the best treatment for a discolored eye.

COLONEL W. J. BRYAN IS INTERVIEWED HERE

Talks on Questions of National Interest Before Leaving.

MEETING THE ISSUES OF THE DAY IN CONGRESS

Three Important Propositions Are To Be Given Attention—The Election of Senators by Direct Vote—Campaign Expense Publicity and the Wool Bill.

Before leaving for Orchard Island, Logan county, Monday, Colonel William Jennings Bryan submitted to the following interview on questions of national importance He said.

"There is righly much interest in the proceedings at Washington and a great deal depends upon the manner in which our party meets the issues of the day during the closing hours of the congress.

"There are three propositions to be dealt with: First, the direct election of senators by the people; second, the measure relating to publicity in campaign expenses before elections; third, the wool bill.

Election of Senators.

"There is now in congress a resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote. This measure is now in conference, and it would be a grave mistake to adjourn without passing it. The parties are divided on the issue relating to the control of the election of senators—an issue 100 years old I see no way of eliminating that issue except to leave the method of election optional with the states. If all the states are brought to popular elections, but left to return to present methods on popular vote, it will eliminate the partisan question and enable the people to elect their senators by direct vote.

"I say to the men who represent the party in congress, 'Don't fail to pass this all-important resolution.'

"In regard to the measure relating to publicity of campaign expenses before election, the senate has broadened the house bill and I sincerely hope the house will accept the senate amendments Publicity can not be too comprehensive Our party can not afford to manufacture constitutional objections to publicity. The senate and house are judges of the qualifications of their members and can compel candidates to submit to any publicity necessary to prevent corruption

The Wool Bill.

"With regard to the wool bill which has been returned with amendments to the house, I hope that the house will be able to secure a lower rate than has been provided in the amendments; but the house would find it hard to defend itself if it refused to accept an amendment that would secure a substantial reduction from the extortionate rates now charged. If the house had put wool on the free list and made a greater reduction on woolen goods, it would have had more margin to use in a compromise. I feel confident, however, that the house will so act as to submit to the president a bill providing for a material reduction in the woolen schedule and I will not believe that the president will veto it, until he actually does so While the president would rather wait until the tariff commission reports he can not overlook the fact that the Democratic house is in itself a tariff commission, appointed by the people and with power to act. He can not ignore the meaning of the congressional victory of last fall in a contest between high tariff advocates and the people and neither can he afford to take the side of the beneficiaries of the outrageous rates that are now collected on woolens"

Likes Reciprocity.

Asked to comment upon the coming presidential election and to say a word concerning the probable candidates and their candidacies, Colonel Bryan said.

"No, I do not care to discuss those things just now My recent utterances and editorial comment in my paper contain all that I have to say."

The next question propounded by his interviewer was reciprocity

Colonel Bryan eagerly grasped the opportunity to say that he is very well pleased with the measure and earnestly hoped that the Canadian government will ratify it.

MRS. ALBERT HAINES RELEASED FROM JAIL

Unfortunate Woman at the Home of Her Brother.

Mrs. Albert Haines was released from the county jail, Saturday night, and taken to the home of a brother, Marion Lyons, on Bartram avenue The affidavit in lunacy filed by Sheriff John G Stark, following her arrest on Chicago avenue, several nights ago, will be dismissed. Mrs. Haines, who kidnaped her nine-year-old daughter from her estranged husband in St. Marys, Pennsylvania and was later compelled to give her up because of her poverty, is believed by attending physicians to be suffering from a nervous breakdown.

ROCKEFELLER TO CONTROL STILL

He and Associates To Dominate as Before.

SUCH IS NEW PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

Announcement Comes from the Standard Oil Offices.

Instead of One Big Company as at Present, There Will Be Thirty-Three Separate Concerns and the Holder of One Share of Stock in Standard Now Will Therein Hold a Proportionate Ownership.

New York, July 31.—Rockefeller ownership of the Standard Oil company and domination of its affairs, will continue as formerly, under the reorganization of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, as announced from the home offices of the Standard Oil company here today.

Instead of one big company as at present, there will be thirty-three separate concerns and the holder of one share of stock in the Standard August 31 next, will, when the books of the big company are opened about December 1, hold a proportionate fractional ownership in each of the thirty-three different concerns. The distribution presents a problem in arithmetic which bids fair to keep expert accountants busy.

Today's announcement, it was carefully explained, was only preliminary. Much is still to be worked out to make the various companies active competitors of each other in accordance with the mandate of the supreme court.

All of the new companies, it appears, however, still will be controlled by John D. Rockefeller and his associates who are the present holders of the majority stock of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. It is expected that, as soon as possible, another circular will be sent to the stockholders explaining how the companies are to carry on their business in the future.

Announcement of Plans.

New York, July 31.—Positive announcement that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is to be split into original thirty-three companies, was made by the company this afternoon. In a letter sent to the stockholders, it is stated that the stock of the various companies will be distributed according to holdings, to the stockhoders of record September 1, of the Standard Oil Cmpany of New Jersey.

According to official notification sent out by the Standard, the transfer books of the company will be closed August 31, and will remain closed until all of the arrangements to turn the new stocks over to its original owners can be made. This it is thought, will require until December 1.

The letter to the stockholders specifically states that "obedience to the final decree of the supreme court of the United States makes this action necessary."

Companies Affected.

The various companies affected which are owned either directly by the Standard Oil or through the big company's ownership of the National Transit company are

Anglo-American Oil company, Limited; Atlantic Refining company; Borne Scrymser company; Buckeye Pipe Line company, Chesebro Manufacturing company, Consolidated; Colonial Oil company; Continental Oil company; Crescent Pipe Line company; Cumberland Pipe Line company; Eureka Pipe Line company; Galena Signal Oil company; Indiana Pipe Line company; National Transit company; New York Transit company; Northern Pipe Line company; Ohio Oil company; Prairie Oil & Gas company; Solar Refining company; Southern Pipe Line company; South Penn Oil company; Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Line; the Standard Oil companies of California, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky ,Nebraska, New York, and Ohio; Swan and Finch company; Union Tank Line company; Vacuum Oil company; Washington Oil company and the Waters-Pierce Oil company.

TWO ENGINEERS ARE INJURED IN WRECK

Three Freight Trains Pile Up Near Rockbridge.

Columbus, O., July 31.—Three freight trains were piled up and Engineers John Weller and John M. Hughey, both of Columbus, were injured late Sunday night near Rockbridge, forty-two miles south of here, in a three-cornered collision between T. & O. C., H. V., and K. & M. trains. A wreck train from Logan is now clearing the tracks

The wreck occurred on the northbound track when the seventh section of a T. & O. C. freight train ran into the rear end of the sixth section of a K. & M. freight train

The K. & M. engine was knocked crosswise on the southbound track. A few minutes later, a double-header Hocking Valley freight train, southbound, collided with the K. & M. engine that was "fouling" the track. About fifty cars in all three trains were piled up.

MRS. ABIGAIL LANDON DIES OF HEART DISEASE

Death Comes Suddenly Friday Morning.

MR. LANDON FINDS WIFE ILL AND DYING

She Passes Away Before a Physician Can Be Secured—Mrs. Landon Is a Daughter of One of the Pioneers of the County—Passes Much of Her Life in County.

Mrs. Abigail Landon, aged seventy-eight years, three months and twelve days, wife of John Landon, the well-known wallpaper merchant, died suddenly of heart disease at her home, No. 220½ west Center street, Friday morning at 4 o'clock. She was dying when her aged husband found her. Before a physician could be called she was dead.

Mrs Landon, who was a noble Christian woman, was born in Prospect township, May 23, 1833, and had always lived in Marion county. Her parents, Christian and Elizabeth Moyer Gast, moved from Pennsylvania and located in what is now known as Prospect township in 1832 Her father bought 600 acres at four dollars an acre. The land was then a wilderness, only fourteen acres of it being cleared, and was a part of what is now the village of Prospect.

Mrs. Landon's father laid out lots and streets in September, 1835, and made the original plat of Middletown, now Prospect, then consisting of eighty-one lots, besides lots donated by him for church, school and burial purposes.

April 3, 1867, Mrs Landon was united in marriage, and as a result of the union one son, Edward, was born The son, who is a traveling salesman, was at home at the time of his mother's death.

Mrs. Landon was a member of the First Presbyterian church. The funeral services, which were private, were conducted by Rev George M Rourke, assisted by Rev E L Hurrelbrink, of Prospect. Burial was made at Prospect.

WHITING ALLEN DIES IN CHICAGO THURSDAY

Death Comes to a Widely-Known Publicity Man.

Whiting Allen, fifty-two, of New York City, one of the foremost press men in the country and known in circus and theatrical circles around the world, died at the Hotel Sherman, in Chicago, Thursday, of acute gastritis. He leaves a widow. The remains were interred at his former home, Delaware.

Mr. Allen, who will be remembered by many Marionites from his frequent visits to this city in years past, went to Chicago last Saturday to arrange for the opening of a moving-picture entertainment in the Garrick theater there today

Whiting Allen had a long newspaper and publicity career. He worked on the Columbus Dispatch and from that paper to the Cincinnati Enquirer, which sent him to Washington for several years as its special correspondent He was with the Philadelphia North American as dramatic critic for many years He was press agent for the Barnum shows and associated with Colonel W. F. Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill. He was with Colonel Cody's show as its press agent in its around-the-world tour. He then became the business manager of many dramatic productions, having managed the Metropolitan Grand Opera company of New York, Caruso, Ellen Terry and many others.

GRASSHOPPERS AND BUGS DOING DAMAGE

The Corn and Oats Suffer from Army of Pests.

Considerable damage is being done the crops in this county by cinch bugs and grasshoppers, and if a hard rain does not soon bring relief from the pests much of the corn crop will be destroyed within the next few days. Nearly every farmer has fallen short in his oats crop as the grasshoppers ate off the tops before it could be cut. Now that the oats have been harvested the corn is suffering.

On each of the farms of H Speechly and John Lamb, west of Big Island, one to two acres near woodland and along fences have been entirely destroyed by the cinch bugs, and on the farms of Frank Epley and John Knickle, east of Marion, the grasshoppers have eaten the silk off many acres of corn.

HOMER COOK DIES AFTER AN OPERATION

Appendicitis Is the Cause of Mr. Cook's Death.

Homer Cook, thirty-five years old, who was operated on for gangrenous appendicitis last Monday, died at his home, No. 729 east Center street, Friday night at 10 o'clock He had been ill only a short time when an operation was deemed necessary to save his life.

Mr Cook was born at Galion Six years ago he was married to Miss Annabelle Klase, of that city He moved to Marion four years ago.

The deceased is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mary Evelyne, and his mother, Mrs R C. Davidson, of this city.

THE CITY OF MARION IS SOURCE OF POLLUTION

Some Discoveries Made in an Inspection.

WHY FISH ARE DYING IN THE LITTLE SCIOTO

Poisonous Sewage Reaches the River Without Passing Through the Filtration Beds at the Garbage and Sewage Disposal Plant—The Disclosures Made.

The city of Marion is declared to be the source of the pollution of the Little Scioto river, according to State Inspector L H Van Buskirk, who, with Sanitary Officer Addison Bain, Thursday, made tests of the river water from Green Camp to this city.

The pollution or the most of it comes from Rock Swale, the contents of which empty into the river without first having passed through the sewage disposal plant.

Into Rock Swale the big Columbia street sewer empties and also what is known as the slaughter-house drain.

The city will be asked by the state board of health to do something to remedy the condition and to act quickly.

The worst difficulty is declared to lie in what is known as the old sewer, a portion of which empties into the Little Scioto The portion was abandoned at the time the sewage disposal plant was built, and it is thought that since then drains have been connected with it.

The investigation by the state board of health was brought about by reason of the fact that tons of fish have been killed in the stream from some mysterious cause.

BRYANT E. CAMPBELL IS INSTANTLY KILLED

Rides Motorcycle into Train on the Pennsylvania.

Bryant E. Campbell, of Columbus, aged about twenty-seven years, a nephew of Mrs. L. W Winder, of south Main street, and a cousin of Victor, Verner and Avis Bryant, of this city, was instantly killed in Columbus, Thursday noon, by Pennsylvania train, No. 442 Campbell was riding his motorcycle west on Mock road when he collided with the train and struck the pilot of the locomotive. His neck, left leg and arm were broken and his face and body badly cut.

Mrs Campbell was in New York City at the time of the accident Aside from his widow he leaves one child.

Mr. Campbell was quite well known here, having frequently visited in Marion. He was engaged in selling books for the Brooklyn Bible house The funeral services were held at the home of the young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Campbell, Sunday afternoon at 3 30 o'clock, and interment was made in the Union cemetery at Columbus.

Miss Minnie Winder and Miss Avis Bryant, cousins of the young man, left Friday for Columbus

JOSEPH HINDMAN DIES IN ASYLUM

Death Comes to Unfortunate After a Long Illness.

Joseph Hindman, fifty-one years old, a painter, paperhanger and carpenter, who was taken to the state asylum for the insane in Columbus three years ago, died at that institution Friday morning

Four years ago, Mr Hindman suffered a stroke of paralysis, which caused him to lose his mind. He was born in Pennsylvania, but had lived in Marion county since babyhood His wife died about ten years age. He is survived by ten children, all of whom reside in this county They are Mrs Princess McCumber, Mary, Bessie, Marie, Fay, Otis, John, Earl, James and Frank Hindman

The remains were brought to this city and taken to the Postle-Curtis undertaking parlors The funeral services were held at Likens chapel, northeast of the city, Saturday, followed by interment in the cemetery there

NOTE ON WALLPAPER LEADS TO ELOPEMENT

First Message Which Joins Two Longing Hearts.

MRS. JOHN THOMPSON WEDS JOHN BORLAND

Couple Laughs at Protests of Children and Goes to Covington for Marriage Service—Both Parties Married Repeatedly Before—Bride Fairly-Wealthy Widow.

A message written in a roll of wallpaper last fall by John H Borland, then employed at the Erie transfer-house, got him his third wife and, incidentally, got for Mrs Abigail Thompson, of Taylor Creek township, Union county, her fourth husband. Early Thursday morning, they eloped to Covington, Kentucky, where they were married.

The elopement was the sequel to strenuous objections made by Mrs Thompson's three children, who opposed the marriage.

Borland's message in the wallpaper was simply a request that the recipient write to him. He gave his complete address. Within a few days he received a letter from Mrs Thompson, whose heart yearned for another mate A brief correspondence followed Then Borland went to Union county and went to work for Mrs Thompson on her farm. Their acquaintance rapidly ripened into love.

Mrs Thompson is about fifty-two years of age and her new husband is several years her junior.

Borland's bride was first married to A Smart at the age of nineteen. A widow at twenty, she married John Thompson, who died a number of years ago After remaining a widow for several years she met Peter Schertzer and married him They lived together a month and she obtained a divorce in this county on the ground of extreme cruelty She was restored to her former name of Thompson

Borland's first wife died and his second wife, who was Catherine Green, secured a divorce in the local courts on the grounds of cruelty and neglect. Their divorce was the climax to several sensational affairs, the wife attempting suicide and finally leaving her husband. At the time she obtained the divorce she testified that Borland had threatened to kill her on several occasions

CHOLERA INFANTUM CAUSE OF DEATH

It's worthy of note that President Taft doesn't try to shift any blame in the Alaskan matter to some underling, which goes to show the stuff of which real presidential timber is made.

After all, Mr. Taft, we haven't a doubt but what the country will agree with you on the proposition that being a real president one term is the surest route to election for a second.

A Cleveland paper says the workhouse is the place for a man who sells bad milk. Still he's not so much worse than the man who edits and sends into the home a vicious paper.

The Cleveland officials, having gone over their figures again, have about concluded that maybe the taxes under the Smith bill will prove ample to meet the needs of the city, but the yell they raised upon the passage of the bill is probably reverberating among the hills and valleys of the state yet.

The Mansfield News points out that "since the legislature emptied the state treasury into the lap of 'Uncle' Jud Harmon, he has not made a single speech against the extravagant expenditure of public money." For shame, Colonels Cappeller and Hiestand! The first thing you fellows know you'll be embarrasing "Uncle Jud" in his presidential campaign?

"No man who lives in the neighborhood of a woman with a vicious tongue," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "ever doubts the existence of a hell."

The minister, who was paid three dollars for praying for the Wisconsin legislature, has returned the money, stating that he is satisfied that his prayer never reached God. We are ready to believe that the price was rather steep for the prayer of any man who would attempt a grandstand play like that or utter such a sentiment.

If there is any truth in the report that Poet Laureate Austin is to write a poem in defense of the lords, our sympathies will have to be transferred to the lords.

"The most of us aren't half so much worried over the investigation by congress of the money trust," observed the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today, "as we are of the investigation by the assessor."

Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, is now being discussed as a possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination. Imagine the voters of the United States intrusting the safety of the government and her people to the hands of a man who, as a city's executive, has never been able, or refused, to make that city safe to her people!

Rev. Percival H. Barker, of Chicago, who labored under the delusion that he could best serve the Lord by introducing brass bands and vaudeville performances in his church, is out of a job. It is a sign of the healthy trend of the times that the pulpit sensationalists are being eliminated and their places taken by men who are preaching the gospel.

Were it not for subjecting newspaper readers to the danger of an attack of heart failure, Attorney General Hogan might let a day pass without rendering an opinion or two.

Should Governor Marshall, of Indiana, make an auto tour in the vicinity of Colonel Tom Taggart's famous hostelry, it needn't surprise him should his tires pick up anything from tacks to ten-penny nails and scythe blades.

Judging by the cry for harvest hands all over the country, it's hard to imagine what kind of a hubbub would have been raised had not the crops been "failures" earlier in the season.

It's awful to live in a "dry" district and read items like that from Missouri about 250 snakes being found in the bottom of a well. Still, it might be worse in a "wet."

As a matter of fact, about the only credit which can attach to that barrel trip of a man over Niagara falls goes to the fellow who made the barrel.

We wouldn't so much object to having one of these motorcyclists shock our nervous system, if it were not for the look of scorn he gives us as we shin up a telephone pole or crawl over a fence.

A Cincinnati woman has had her husband enjoined from talking, which may be legal, but were the thing reversed and the injunction issued against the wife it would surely come under the head of cruel and unusual punishments.

A CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE FOR THE BUCKEYE STATE

Doubtless the people of Ohio generally will much prefer to elect a congressman-at-large, to provide for the additional representative accredited to the state under the apportionment founded on the 1910 census, rather than have the legislature called in special session and the state ripped up for party purposes. At one time it was thought the congressional districts of Ohio smack clearly of Republican designing. Doubtless they were arranged to give Republicans a comfortable majority of reasonably safe districts. It was not seriously bad, even when the state went as heavily Republican as fifty thousand, for the minority party was even then fairly certain of a half dozen or eight representatives. The Third, Fourth, Fifth and Thirteenth Districts are as Democratic as need be, the Sixth, Ninth and Fourteenth have proven their readiness to go Democratic, even when President Taft heavily carried the state, and the Seventh, Eleventh and Seventeenth joined the Democratic column last year and also the Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-First broke away from their old Republican moorings. Perhaps there are others, indeed one of the Cincinnati districts went Democratic then. But the point is that the present district lines admit of reasonably fair Democratic representation, for Ohio has sixteen Democrats to five Reupblicans in Congress today. Let these men go back to their constitutents on their records; if they are approved, they will be reelecetd.

But it is interesting to contemplate the election of a congressman-at-large. He will be the choice of the whole state. It makes the best timber in all the state available. The man chosen will feel he has a state for his constituency and a nation to serve, rather than be worn out as the "chore man" of a district.

To be sure, the constitution and federal election laws do not require a district to choose a congressman from the citizenship within its district lines. Within the state we could exercise the freedom of the English system, and the Thirteenth district, for example, might, if its electors chose, select a congressman from Cuyahoga or Hamilton or Adams or Morrow to serve in congress. However, this never will happen in Ohio. Every district has too much local pride, and, moreover, there is no need for drafting talent outside the district.

With a congressman-at-large we shall have a political novelty; we may note the call to the big congressional aspirants in either great party, and we shall get the best judgment of the people of Ohio on congressional issues, free from district prejudices and local issues and the personal strength of candidates. Ohio will be interested in the experiment.

We have great admiration for the Toledo Blade man save and except when he tries to make a pumpkin pie from a squash.

Now were turnips instead of potatoes to sell at $2.40 a bushel, it's hardly probable we would hear a word of complaint.

A Filipino junta has opened headquarters in Brooklyn, and has spread an independent flag to the breeze. We are foolishly tolerant about some things and will probably permit a coterie of adventurers to plot in comfort in the "City of Churches," the death of some of our boys in the Philippines. It will be noted that these alleged patriots are not at home aiding in the development of their country and the fitting of their countrymen for independence. They do not even propose to repay the United States any part of the vast sums the United States has spent to promote the health, education and welfare of the islanders. Their operations are treasonable and should be sternly repressed. Independence for the Filipinos can come only when the natives of the islands have been brought into some measure of homogenity and induced to give up old tribal alignments and customs. To anticipate that time would be to turn the territory over to rapine and murder and the rule of the bushwhacker.

Delegate Wickersham, of Alaska, has charged his enemies—and they seem to embrace every official from the president down—with almost every crime from murder to mayhem. He has not been content to file information "to the best of my belief," but he has made the charges as of personal knowledge and declared his ability to substantiate them by irrefutable evidence. He should be made to do so, and if he fails should be expelled from his seat in the house and from the society of decent men. There has been too much of this guerilla warfare upon reputation; and public servants, maliciously maligned, should be protected and revenged.

We wonder what the effect of making beer out of cabbage leaves will have on the price of cigars.

An Atlantic City woman lost her voice as a result of automobile riding. Looks like an auto ad.

LET THE PERCENTAGE BE SUFFICIENTLY LARGE

In Missouri a special election was held upon the question of issuing bonds to build a new capitol. These bonds were to be a charge upon the property of every person contributing to the tax returns. The issues were clearly drawn and not involved; and yet less than twenty per cent. of the voters rallied to the polls. It will be remembered that in Ohio the question of a constitutional amendment which was intended to make unnecessary annual sessions of the general assembly, by correcting an ambiguity in the constitution, failed of receiving a majority of the votes cast at the election although there was no opposition manifested to the amendment and few negative votes polled upon it. Only one amendment to the constitution of 1851 has ever been adopted except through the devious device of the now-repealed Longworth law permitting "straight" ballots to be counted in the affirmative on questions approved by party conventions. The advocates of the initiative and referendum propose now to order constitutional amendment elections upon the petition of a small fraction of the vote of the state—not to exceed twelve per cent.—and to initiate statutes or secure a referendum upon those enacted by the legislature upon the petition of only eight per cent. The average vote cast at our elections is only about 800,000. It will be seen that the signatures of 64,000 electors, however secured, would involve the state in the tremendous expense of an election upon a matter which might be of little moment except to a small percentage of the population. If we are to embark upon the experiment of the initiative and referendum let us at least make the percentage requirements high enough to ensure consideration and stop its use by selfish interests. With frequent elections upon every form of legislation the professional politician will come into his harvest as a chaser of signatures and a herder of voters on special propositions.

SHERIFF CHILCOTE ROUNDLY CRITICIZED

Matter of the Escape of D. L. Yake from Jail.

Sheriff Charles B. Chilcote, the first Democratic sheriff elected in Morrow county for many years, is being roundly criticized because of his failure to hold in the county jail at Mt. Gilead, D. L. Yake, well known in this city, who has twice escaped and is now at large.

Morrow county citizens are subjecting Chilcote to adverse criticism, because they say Yake, a self-confessed thief, would not have escaped had the sheriff exercised proper precautions and maintained the vigilance to be expected of him in the performance of his duty. It is declared by those who have seen the holes through which Yake is said to have wriggled to liberty that the fugitive must possess marvelous powers of contraction.

Mayor Retterer, of Cardington, is outspoken and vigorous in his declaration that he will leave no stone unturned to fix the responsibility for Yake's escape, and that if recaptured by Cardington officers he will see that Yake is placed in a safer prison.

Yake had a little money when he escaped.

JAMES YOAKAM DIES AT HOME NEAR LIMA

Death Is the Result of Treatment by Thieves.

James Yoakam, aged eighty-eight years, died at his home near Lima, Tuesday morning, his death being the direct result of the robbery perpetrated at his home three years ago when he and his aged wife were bound, gagged and threatened in their home by a gang of desperadoes who were after money supposed to be hidden in the Yoakam home. Since the robbery, Mr. Yoakam was in a nervous condition and lived in constant fear.

The deceased is survived by a widow and six children. Mrs. Sarah Sautter, formerly of Marion, but who has been making her home with her parents, and Charles Yoakam, of this city, are children of the deceased. Councilman Andrew J. Sautter and Claude Sautter left Thursday to attend the funeral of their grandfather.

SUN VAUDEVILLE THEATER CHANGES

Some Improvements Are Now Being Made.

A number of improvements are being made at the Sun vaudeville theater on west Center street, and the little playhouse is to be in excellent condition when the season is opened. Several changes are being made on the stage, and improvements in the lighting are anticipated. Improvements at the front of the theater will also be made, and the interior will be generally overhauled and placed in good condtion. Every change for the safety and advantage of the patrons will be made. It is planned to open the theater for the season, the evening of August 28.

Committee Meets.

The executive committee of the Marion County Agricultural society held a meeting in the office of Secretary James A. Knapp, Tuesday afternoon, and transacted a little business in connection with the building of a new barn at the fairground.

SAYS CHURCH PAPERS WOULD FEEL RESULT

Hitchcock's Order Would Hurt Circulation, Says Witness.

New York, Aug. 3.—That the blow Postmaster General Hitchcock's recommendations for increased postal rates strikes at education, particularly religious instruction, was the theme of testimony given before the postal rate commission today by W. S. Shallenberger, former second assistant postmaster general, who appeared before the postal rate commission in behalf of numerous religious publications.

Shallenberger called attention to the millions of religious publications carried in the mails and asserted that an increase in the rate would necessitate a large curtailment of publication. He recommended that the postoffice department consider means to curb the carrying of advertising and similar matter "which is destined only for the waste basket."

Shallenberger took direct issue with Hitchcock's contention that the postoffice department should produce revenue, declaring that in no other country is this policy pursued.

CLARY IS AGAIN READY FOR WORK

Man Entombed in Mine Shows No Ill Effects.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 3.—Counting his three days' entombment in the White Oak zinc mine as a bath of immunity against further mine disasters, Joseph Clary will probably return to work tomorrow. Had physicians permitted, Clary would have entered the mine today.

Clary is resting today at the home of his father, but is eager to resume his inspection of the new mine, which he had just undertaken last Sunday when the prospect drift was shut by a cave-in. He is certain the cave-in and the digging of a new shaft for his rescue, which reopened the mine, will result in a big find of zinc ore.

No ill effects are anticipated in Clary's case. His mother, too, is said to be gaining strength from her illness which had been made worse by her son's experience.

HOLY GHOST SHIP AT MERCY OF SEA

The Coronet Said To Be Somewhere Off Cape Hatteras.

New York, Aug. 3.—Somewhere off Cape Hatteras, the yacht, Coronet, flagship of the fleet of the "Holy Ghost and Us" society of Shiloh, Maine, is in distress, according to a report brought by the El Valle, in from Galveston.

The El Valle spoke a small powerboat under sail with five men aboard just off Hatteras. The men were out of gasoline and provisions and took enough from the El Valle to enable them to reach Chesapeake bay. The crew of the powerboat was very mysterious in discussing the Coronet, which it admitted it had left some time before.

The Coronet carries forty-eight men, women and children rescued from the barkentine, Kingdom, another Holy Ghost vessel, which went ashore on the West African coast last May.

BRYAN MAINTAINS ABSOLUTE SILENCE

Has Nothing To Say Regarding Action of Underwood.

Petoskey, Mich., Aug. 3.—William J. Bryan, who today is lecturing in southern Michigan, thus far has maintained an absolute silence regarding the action of Representative Underwood, Democrat, of Alabama, chairman of the Democratic ways and means committee, who has charged Bryan with being a falsifier for asserting that the former was a protectionist.

James M. Hall, of Petoskey, who entertained Byan here yesterday, says the Nebraskan read the newspaper account of Underwood's action in silence and offered no comment.

LIQUOR QUESTION SEPARATE SUBJECT

Cincinnati Constitutional Committee Discusses Matter.

Cincinnati, Aug. 3.—That the liquor question be submitted to the people of the state separate from other provisions of the proposed new constitution, was the purport of a resolution adopted Wednesday night by the Cincinnati Constitutional committee, which is to nominate progressive candidates to the constitutional convention. The resolution was presented by Herbert S. Bigelow, who said that on the liquor question, as on other questions, only such men as represent the sentiment of their communities should be nominated as delegates.

LIFE IN RICHMOND JAIL PALLS ON GIRL

Richmond, Va., Aug. 3.—To substantiate many details of the manner in which they contend Mrs. Henry Beattie, Jr., met her death, as they assert, at the hands of her husband, counsel for the prosecution this afternoon are considering the exhumation of the body of the murdered woman. No detailed autopsy was performed. Mrs. Owen, mother of the murdered woman, will fight any plan to exhume the body of her daughter.

Life in Richmond jail today palled on Beulah Binford, the seventeen-year-old girl, for love of whom the commonwealth charges Beattie murdered his wife.

For the first time since she was detained, the "other woman" today was almost in tears as she pleaded with her guards to take her out for a few moments' ride about the city.

MARION CHAUTAUQUA A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

Results of the Second Annual Assembly Announced.

A BUSINESS MEETING WEDNESDAY EVENING

The Association Will Have About $1,800 Net To Apply on Improvements for Future Chautauquas. Matter of Buying a Tent or Erecting a Pavilion.

Approximately $1,800 will be cleared by the Marion County Chautauqua association from last week's second annual assembly, held at the fairground. The receipts amounted to about $6,400.

This announcement was made by Treasurer J. E. Waddell, Thursday, following a meeting of the officers, Wednesday night, when most of this year's Chautauqua business was cleaned up. Treaturer Waddell said:

"The receipts will reach practically to $6,400, and while the bills are not all in yet, the management hopes to save in the neighborhood of $1,800. It may be that we will save a little more than this, and it may be that we will not save quite that much, but it will be close to that figure. We can't tell exactly just what our receipts will be, because we are to receive several amounts yet, but they will be close to the figure I gave you."

The high-class talent alone for the Chautauqua cost the association exactly $3,095. William Jennings Bryan was the highest-priced attraction. He received $500. The various concert companies cost several hundred dollars each.

A Great Success.

In speaking of the Chautauqua, today, President W. T. Jones declared:

"I don't know of any successful affair that has been given in Marion that was managed so economically as the Marion County Chautauqua. Every officer worked with all his might, and every officer, too, bought season tickets. Precious few complimentaries were given out. Even some of you newspaper boys bought season tickets. The Chautauqua was a wonderful event, and I believe the people of Marion really appreciate it."

The question of whether a mammoth tent is to be purchased or whether a steel pavilion is to be erected will be decided later. There are many phases of the matter to be ironed out.

Wednesday night's meeting was adjourned by the officers to meet at the call of the president. The new officers will be elected just as soon as the old business is completely transacted. The officers responsible for the most successful Chautauqua are:

W. T. Jones, president; Edward F. Tittelbaugh and Charles Turner, first and second vice presidents; John E. Waddell, treasurer; J. B. Virden, secretary; Dr. W. L. Davidson, superintendent of instruction; R. T. Lewis, J. E. Phillips, W. N. Harder, O. S. Rapp, W. E. Frye, Dr. C. E. Sawyer, W. G. Harding and S. B. Lipponcott, executive committee.

GUTHERY IS IN RACE FOR CITY SOLICITOR

Takes Out a Petition To Enter the Primaries.

Frederick E. Guthery, Democrat, and former prosecuting attorney, has taken out a petition to enter the primaries for the nomination of city solicitor. The probabilities are strong that he will have no opposition.

Some time ago when certain Democrats sought to draft Mr. Guthery as a candidate for city solicitor, he finally said he would be a candidate, if Attorney W. P. Moloney decided that he did not want the nomination. Mr. Moloney refused to be a candidate, and was the first one to sign Mr. Guthery's petition.

Fred W. Warner is the only Republican candidate for the nomination of city solicitor. The first time that he ran for the nomination, against City Solicitor Elmer T. Boyd, he missed it by only one vote.

CHARLES CRAFTS IN JUSTICE'S COURT

Is Charged with Violation of Drug Laws.

Charles Crafts, one of the proprietors of the Crafts Drug company, was arrested and arraigned before Justice Charles H. Conley, this afternoon, on a charge of "selling a certain substance purporting, appearing and represented to be forty per cent. formaldehyde," when, it is charged, the substance fell below the professed standard.

The affidavit was filed by Harry S. Mesloh, an inspector of the state dairy and food department, who says he warned Crafts against selling the article during the smallpox epidemic The affidavit charges him with violating the law, May 3, 1911.

The maximum penalty for the offense is $25 and costs.

William Cappellar Ill.

William Cappellar, editor of the Mansfield News and one of the oldest newspaper editors in this section of the state, is confined in a sanitarium at Green Spring. His condition is considered somewhat serious. Mr. Cappellar has many friends in this city, who will be grieved to learn of his illness.

The mosquito is saddest when he stings—unless he makes a quick getaway.

TWO ARBITRATION PACTS ARE SIGNED

United States, England and France Set World Example.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The general arbitration treaties between the United States, Great Britain and France, constituting the most advanced step ever taken in the family of nations for the peaceful settlement of disputes, were signed today. Paris and Washington being the scenes of the conclusion of the negotiations.

Secretary Knox signed the British and French treaties in the east room of the White House. On behalf of the British government, Ambassador Bryce signed the documents. Earlier in the day, at Paris, Ambassador Jusserand signed the French treaty.

The arbitration treaties really found their inception in what at the time was regarded as a casual utterance of President Taft at a dinner of the American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes in this city Dec. 15 last. On that occasion the president declared he saw no reason why the ancient tradition should be preserved that questions affecting the vital interest and honor of nations could not be arbitrated; that in his opinion these questions were as susceptible of dispassionate arbitration as any other international issues.

THE M'INCROW HOME IS SEARCHED AGAIN

Captain Bond and Two Officers Find Intoxicants.

MEN SEEN ENTERING AND LEAVING PLACE

Officers Hope To Find McIncrow at Home, but Mrs. McIncrow Is Alone—A Bold Theft at the Star Restaurant—Thief Escapes with Thirty Dollars—Police Notes.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock, Wednesday evening, Captain Bond and Officers Shrock and McColly searched the home of Mrs. William McIncrow, who resides in a flat on south Main street. The search was made for intoxicants, there being a suspicion that some bootlegging was being done at the McIncrow home. It was also believed that McIncrow, who jumped a bond for his appearance in a case against him for bootlegging, of which he was found guilty in the mayor's court, was paying visits to his home and might be found. For an hour previous to the search, Officer Shrock had been watching the place and states that he saw three men enter and four come out. However, McIncrow was not at home. In the search for intoxicants, a quart bottle partly filled with whisky, four pint bottle of beer and thirty-seven empty beer bottles were found, but no persons were in the house except Mrs. McIncrow. The wet goods were not taken by the officers, as it was not believed a case could be made as a result of the search.

The proprietors of the Star restaurant, on north Main street, were relieved of $30 by a bold theft at an early hour Thursday. Clifford Knachel, the manager and one of the proprietors of the place, was making out the cash in the office, which is some distance from the front of the restaurant. Knachel left the office and went to the front part of the store to lock some money in a safe. On leaving the office, he left thirty dollars on the desk. He stopped at the cigar case to secure a cigar and on his return to the office the money was gone. There is a clew as to the guilty party, but Knachel refused to give the police any information that might lead to an arrest.

THE COLUMBUS NEWS ORDERED SUSPENDED

Paper Said To Be Operating at a Big Loss.

Columbus, O., Aug. 3.—The Columbus News, which has been in the hands of a receiver through suit brought by the Hearst News service, was ordered suspended today by Judge E. B. Kinkead.

Receiver Outhwaite stated to the court that the paper was operating at a loss of more than $1,000 a week. Its total liabilities amount to about $110,000. Of this amount, $20,000 is in preferred claims, held largely by employes as back pay. The property has been appraised at $34,700.

The News was established in 1812, as the Freeman's Chronicle.

It has been known sucessively as the Ohio Monitor, Ohio Statesman, Statesman-Dispatch, Times-Democrat, Press-Times, Press-Post, Press, and the News.

GEORGE P. PLEASANT CAUGHT IN RUNAWAY

Auto Driver Takes Him Home and Pays Damages.

George P. Pleasant, a farmer residing in Big Island township, narrowly escaped serious injury in a runaway on the Big Island pike, Wednesday afternoon, when his team of horses was frightened by an automobile and upset his wagon into a ditch. Pleasant leaped and fell against a fence, sustaining a number of bruises and cuts. The horses broke away from the overturned wagon and ran to the Pleasant place just north of Big Island. The automobile driver, whose name was not learned, stopped his machine and took Pleasant to his home. He also paid Pleasant for the damage that had been done the wagon. The automobile carried a number obtained in Indiana.

WILLIAM KENNEDY IS CALLED VERY SUDDENLY

Death Comes at Meeker Home Saturday Morning.

AN AGED VETERAN OF THE FOURTH REGIMENT

Mr. Kennedy Is Ill for Some Time, but Friends Do Not Regard Condition Serious Until Recently—Is the Father of Mrs. George W. Baker, of This City—Good Citizen.

William Kennedy, aged seventy-six years, died of old age and complications at his home at Meeker, Saturday morning at 5:30 o'clock. He had been ill for the past several years, but only during the past three weeks had his condition been considered serious. Saturday morning, he dressed and was resting on the porch. While there he became very ill. He was helped into the house and died almost immediately.

Mr. Kennedy was born in Pennsylvania and came to Marion county with his parents when but eight years of age. He was a veteran of the civil war and a member of the Fourth regiment O. V. I. During the war, he came home on a furlough and was married to Miss Eliza Webb, of this county. He then returned and remained with his company until the close of the war. Mr. Kennedy was a carpenter by trade, highly respected and well known throughout the county. He was a member of Cooper Post, No. 117, G. A. R.

The deceased is survived by his widow and two children, Mrs. G. W. Baker, of Marion, and George Kennedy, who lives at home.

THE LIFE INSURANCE BILLIONS ARE MANY

How the Great Companies Distribute Investments.

Life insurance companies have been charged with favoritism in the matter of distributing their investments. It has been argued, says a writer in Moody's Magazine, that the reserves held by the companies should be invested in the territories where the policyholders live who contributed them, and in one or two states legal enactments have been passed to secure this result.

Railroad bonds and real estate mortgage loans are the two classes of securities most patronized by the companies. Of the $3,665,630,535 assets owned by the companies doing business in New York no less than $1,746,665,734 is invested in bonds and stocks and $1,126,279,860 in mortgage loans.

So far as the latter form of investment is concerned, this kind of criticism is silenced because the mortgages themselves, scattered over wide areas, are the best evidence that the policy holders' money is not "piled up in Wall Street." But with stock and bond investments it is different.

Because railroad securities are bought on the New York Stock exchange, even though the railroads which they sustain help to develop the southern and western states, some critics from these states have conjured up a financial grievance against the companies and raised the specious cry of "Keep our money at home."

That these sections of the country have nothing to complain of in the matter of investments has been conclusively shown in a paper by Robert L. Cox, general counsel of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

Analyzing the investments of fourteen large companies representing two-thirds of the entire assets, Mr. Cox found that states like Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska had more than three times as high a ratio of investments to reserves as had the New England states. Paul Morton, late president of the Equitable Life, in a speech delivered in Chicago in December last, stated that life insurance companies had invested in the Mississippi valley territory $726,000,000, although the estimated reserves belonging to the policy-holders residing in the same territory amounted to only $583,000,000.

Gowns are now made without weight, no matter how they are cut and trimmed.

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scores of Marion Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow;

Help the kidneys do their work.

Doan's Kidney Pills build up weak kidneys.

Marion people endorse our claim.

Mrs. H. Rice, 231 Lincoln Ave., Marion, Ohio, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family with excellent results. Some ten or twelve years ago we first procured them at Schmidt & Co's Drug Store and they proved to be a genuine kidney medicine, living up to all the claims made for them. At that time I freely gave a statement for publication recommending Doan's Kidney Pills and now I can say that lapse of time has not changed by opinion of them. I willingly give this excellent kidney remedy my re-endorsement."

FORECLOSURE SUIT IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

Jesse L. Smucker and Others Are the Defendants.

CARDINGTON BANK SEEKING TO RECOVER

Bank Company Wants Judgment for $7,224.55 and Royal Roller Rink Property Sold To Satisfy the Claim—C. Mayo Osborne Files an Answer and Cross-Petition.

Jesse L. Smucker, the Royal Roller Rink company and W. B. Denman are named as defendants in a foreclosure proceeding brought in the court of common pleas by the Citizens' Bank company, of Cardington, July 28, through Attorneys Copeland & Bartram.

The plaintiff asks judgment against the defendants, Jesse L. Smucker and the Royal Roller Rink company, in the sum of $7,224.55, with six per cent. interest. It is also prayed that the defendant, W. B. Denman, be required to answer and set up his claim in the premises of the rink company, on north State street. It is also prayed that the mortgage be foreclosed, the property sold and the plaintiff's note and mortgage paid out of the proceeds.

C. Mayo Osborne, defendant in an action brought by Mary Taylor, has filed in the court of common pleas, through Attorneys Jacoby & Donithen, an answer and cross-petition in which he admits the execution of a note described in the first cause of action, and says he has paid the plaintiff $261.60 on it, for which he says he should be credited. He denies each and every other allegation, and says that there is now due him from Mary Taylor, the plaintiff, the sum of $300 for clothing, which his deceased mother, Alice J. Harris, transferred to him and which was taken from his possession, he alleges, by the plaintiff, following the death of his mother. He asks judgment for $300.

B. K. Stanfield has begun a suit in replevin and $50 damages against Constable James F. Ullom, in the court of common pleas. The petition was filed by Attorneys Hoopes, Rolman & Hoopes, of Marysville, Thursday afternoon. Stanfield sets up that he is entitled to possession of the following goods and chattels: One sideboard, tobacco case, counter and stools, register, wall clock, etc., located in Mrs. William Shirk's room at LaRue.

PRESBYTERIES WILL PROBABLY BE JOINED

A Committee Acts Favorably in the Matter.

The members of the Presbyterian churches in this city will be pleased to know that the union of the Bellefontaine and Marion Presbyteries is practically assured. In regard to this union the Bellefontaine Examiner says:

A committee representing the Marion Presbytery and the Bellefontaine Presbytery met here, Thursday, and took favorable action toward uniting the two Presbyteries. Their report will be submitted at the separate meeting of both bodies this fall and, if acted upon favorably, will go to synod, and if approved by them will be sent to the general assembly meeting next May, and if it is agreed to there, the union of the two Presbyteries will be accomplished in September, 1912.

The members of the joint committee here, Thursday, on the matter are Rev. W. A. Atkinson, of Marysville, and Elder J. L. Anderson, of Delaware, representing the Marion Presbytery, and Rev. W. L. Barret, of Bellefontaine, and Rev. Dent Atkinson, of Urbana, representing Bellefontaine Presbytery.

A Magnificent Capital.

It touches national pride at every point on the map that the capital of this republic is being developed into a magnificence that will far surpass the architectural splendors of any other city of the present or of the past. There is no longer talk anywhere about moving the capital somewhere nearer the center of the country. Sentiment the country over has settled down to the conclusion that, considering the matter in all of its bearings, the site originally selected is the very best that could be chosen for the capital. And as sentiment has settled it that Washington is forever to be the capital city, there is no grudging in any remote corner the lavish outlay which congress has been voting, session after session, for the building of such a collection of marble palaces as are grouped in no other city on earth.

Three magnificent structures are to be added to the state palaces of the national capital within the next few years. The departments of state and of justice are to have each a separate building, as also the department of commerce and labor. The plans for these buildings, which have been approved by the national art commission, contemplate a grouping scheme which will vastly heighten the finished architectural effect. The placing of the buildings has been just as carefully studied as were the sixty designs submitted for each structure. Washington is to be distinguished among world capitals not alone for the splendor of its architecture, but quite as much for the effective vistas, the delightful sense of proportion and balance which is being evolved in the placing of the state palaces. Our national capital is to be a dream city, built, however, to endure through the ages.—Baltimore American.

ANCIENT MUCKRAKER.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for August 6 Is "Jeremiah Tried and Acquitted." Jeremiah 26.

An Old Testament "muckraker"—so his enemies might have termed Jeremiah, the weeping prophet, with whom the Sunday-schools of the world are to spend the present month. It is a sorrow-seamed face that we behold when we look upon Jeremiah; his tears were not for himself, but for his nation. A weak man weeps for himself; but even the strongest man is honored by the tears he sheds for his native land. Let nobody look with contempt upon this sorrowing prophet, for he was not one of those ineffective persons who, in the presence of a calamity, merely weep and wring their hands.

The red blood of the brave coursed through Jeremiah's veins. He dared all dangers for his country's sake Personal suffering, the public whipping post, the stocks, imprisonment, the enmity of the rich and powerful, the ridicule of the poulace—Jeremiah endured all this, and more, with the heroism of a patriot He counted not his life a prize to be retained if he might by any means serve his people. All the obloquy and ignominy that ever overtakes a reformer fell to his lot; but, like many another of his calling since, he has been vindicated by history. One has need of long patience who would be a real reformer.

All the scorn that has been heaped upon the head of the modern "muckraker," as some have chosen to call the men and women who tell the hard and unlovely truth about their own times, was first endured by this ancient prophet. Like all who merit classification with him, he had a passion for telling the truth—and the truth for the present hour at that No vague and stupid generalizations for his. His message had a mark; that it found lodgment was proved by the number of vigorous enemies he made. There is no clearer testimony to the searching truthfulness of the Indian writings of Rudyard Kipling than the fact that he is heartily hated by a large proportion of the British society in India, who can not find adjectives sufficiently severe with which to characterize him. The way to win a poet-laureateship and decorations is not to tell the wholesome truth for the present hour, but to espouse the cause and party in power, and to be "discreet," at whatever cost to truth. Since the first bard smote his lyre, the Jeremiahs of history have received more stones than decorations, more beatings than laurel crowns. But who would not rather be a Kipling than an Austin, a Jeremiah than one of the now nameless court prophets of Baal?

When Pendulum Swings.

The pendulum of Judah's history had swung the other way after the death of the godly King Josiah. He himself had been guilty of a grave political blunder in spousing the cause of Assyria, in the conflict between that power and Egypt. In the ripeness of his powers, Josiah was slain in battle. The result was that an Egyptian puppet was placed upon the throne. King Jehoiakim, who naturally turned to the fashions of the powerful neighbor to whom he owed his position. Thus the old, old curse of idolatry came back into the land, and the reforms of Josiah were alrgely undone

Bewildered by the rapid succession of good and bad kings in Jewish history, and the swift reversals of religious policy, one is tempted to ask whether the same fickleness is possible in our own time Which brings us to a significant difference between this day and the times of old. At present, the greatest determining factor in a nation's life is the mind of the people. Nothing can hold sway for long against the popular will. It is necessary for the national conscience to be seared, or the national heart to be corrupt, for the nation to go altogether astray in morals or religion. Not so in olden time Then the king was the state Dynasties rose and fell with amazing swiftness, because the king was all and the people were naught. Modern history moves more steadily and rationally because the spirit of democracy controls

The Patriot Eyes.

Even in the creation of public opinion in those days the one man had greater corresponding power than today, for now we have hundreds of men in the prophet's office where Judah had one. Consider the editors, teachers, preachers, and publicists who are as watchmen upon the walls of the commonwealth. The reason that the sanest of these are not weeping Jeremiahs is that there is no sufficient reason to be so. It would be well to pause in the teaching of this lesson to speak a word of gratitude for the clean-eyed and high-souled men and women who discern and publish abroad the signs of the times

This ability to appraise aright the conditions of his own time is what makes the prophet It was Jeremiah's characteristic Self-analysis is necessary to self-cleansing We must know our own day ere we can better it That is why the need is great and ever greater for more prophets with patriot eyes We need a new race of poets, filled with national spirit The lack of poems, paintings and sculptures, and of music also, truly embodying the spirit of this new western democracy, and its prodidential place in the economy of nations, is really remarkable. Where are our cheerful Jeremiahs?

Good Man's Enemies.

The present lesson is a story of plots and enemies. The Prophet's foes were athirst for his life. They did not like his tidings, and so they thought to silence his voice. That is an old fashion which has not yet gone out of vogue. To crush the man whose message makes you squirm—to drive him from his pulpit if he is a preacher, to buy out his paper or magazine if he is an editor, to defeat him at election if he holds public office—this is a modern method which is as old as Jeremiah's time. Only the rare person can refrain from regarding as an enemy the man who speaks a truth which touches him uncomfortably.

One strange fact about enemies which every reformer needs to bear always in mind is that good men may oppose the good. Sometimes a righteous man's foes will be they of his own household of faith. Noble men will, from motives which appear inscrutable, espouse the side which is opposed to light and progress. The priests were among Jeremiah's enemies. To be progressive and unconventional is to be misunderstood. Not only the children of darkness, but also the dwellers in the twilight, will oppose the heralds of the better day.

No lesson of history is older or plainer than this, yet every day some new servant of the public weal will persist in being surprised or grieved because estimable persons do not understand or approve of him. To work in any way that counts for the betterment of the present order is to win enemies. That fact should be written early and often in the reformer's platform; none the less it should not make him bitter or martyrlike; it is merely a part of the day's work, as bugs are part of potato-raising. The active worker in neighborhood politics, in church affairs, or in any other department of human welfare, must expect misunderstandings, misrepresentations and even active enmity.

How Fire Was Lighted.

The sense that God has spoken to him is the prime characteristic of every great prophet, whatever the vehicle of expression of his message. Jeremiah describes himself sufficiently as one "to whom the word of Jehovah came." There is no need for other biographical details; God spoke to him; that was his call and his equipment and his credentials. The story of Jeremiah's call, his overwhelming sense of unworthiness, and his exaltation to the place of the prophet, which is above that of kings, is nowhere more adequately told than in this quotation:—

"I have appointed thee a prophet unto the nations."

"Then said I, 'Ah, Lord Jehovah! behold, I know not how to speak; for I am a child."

"But Jehovah said unto me, 'Say not, "I am a child;" for to whomsoever I shall send thee thou shalt go, and whatsoever I shall command thee thou shalt speak. Be not afraid because of them; for I am with thee to deliver thee,' saith Jehovah.

"Then Jehovah put forth His hand and touched my mouth, and Jehovah said unto me, 'Behold, I have put my word in thy mouth; see, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to pluck up and to break down and to destroy and to overthrow, to build and to plant.'"

Well may the teacher of his fellows cry, with Miss Havergal,

"Lord, speak to me, that I may speak,
In living echoes of Thy tone."

Quite understandable and praiseworthy is the recent action of a successful minister over a large church, who resigned his charge in order to spend a year apart from men, not for rest or recreation of intellectual study but simply in order that he might hear more closely the voice of God, and cultivate his own inner life. Each in his own way must—yes, simply must—secure this detachment from the thronging world, in order to get the word which qualifies him to speak and to live. Only they can lead men who have at seasons gone aside from men in order to be in fellowship with the Unseen.

The Plot Against the Prophet.

The man whose ears have been open to any great word of God cares as little for men's praise as for their blame Jeremiah feared not the face of man, because he had looked into the face of God. His messages were not sweet and soft tickling his heaers' ears He spoke of dread judgment to come upon the apostate nation Because he foretold the destruction of Jerusalem the blind and erring leaders of his ray, purveyors to and profiters from the nation's sin, thought to destroy him. Silencing the bell-buoy does not remove the rocks; but that fatuous error is one common to all enemies of the truth. So they set about the death of the fearless Jeremiah.

As if he cared! Nobody can be so disdainful of death, as he who has spoken the word of the Lord The prophet bothered nothing about his life; that was merely a trumpet through which the Lord spoke, and if silenced on earth it would only grow more jubilant about greater messages in heaven. So Jeremiah flouted his enemies, speaking his word up to the very last. Perhaps it was the high unconcern of the prophet; perhaps it was a winged shaft from his quiver of truth, finding tardy lodgment in their hearts; perhaps it was long slumbering conscience at last awakened—whatever the reason, certain of the elders recalled King Hezekiah's nobler way with the Prophet Micah. Thus every good deed in the past rallies to the re-enforcement of the present good; Micah and Hezekiah, both faithful, though long dead, came to the succor of an imperilled prophet in the day of their children's children. Whenever virtue and nobility seem not worth while, to any spent and discouraged man, let it be remembered that they may be the salvation of children yet unborn. To betray the honor of the present, either in the single soul or in the state, is to sell the future into bondage. Jeremiah emerged from his present trial scatheless, because he feared not death, and because his predecessor in the prophtic office had been a true man under a worthy sovereign.

RECEIVERSHIP TANGLE IS GUERILLA WARFARE

What Judge Thomas Bigger Thinks of Case.

WILLIAMS AND WHYSALL DEMURRERS OVERRULED

Judge Bigger Holds It Impossible for Two Courts To Be in Possession of Same Property at Same Time. Leave Granted To Answer the Original Complaint of Contempt.

A United Press wire from Columbus, Monday says:

Branding the action of the Marion county courts in the C., D. & M. receivership tangle as legal guerilla warfare, Judge Thomas M. Bigger, today, overruled the demurrers of Judge C. C. Williams and George W. Whysall to the information in contempt filed against them by Receiver Eli M. West, Judge Kinkead's appointee.

Judge Bigger held that it is impossible for two courts to hold the same property at the same time The demurrers were based on the grounds that the complaint of Receiver West was insufficient in form and insufficient in substance. Judge Bigger made no comment upon the question of professional ethics in the case of Judge Williams, who, at one time, acted as counsel for Receiver West.

The defendant parties were granted until Monday, August 7, to answer the original complaint and the cases against Williams and Whysall will come up before Judge Charles M. Rogers, Thursday, August 10, for a hearing on their merits.

THE CHAUTAUQUA IS A FINANCIAL SUCCESS

Nice Sum Available for Purposes of Association.

A nice sum to be used toward the purchase of a tent or the erection of an auditorium in which to hold the sessions of the Marion County Chautauqua and for other purposes will be gained as a result of the Chautauqua just closed. Although the exact financial standing of the association has not yet been ascertained, it is understood that about $6,000 was taken in and the total expenditure will be but little over $4,000. The talent on the program was obtained at a cost of a little over $2,600. Several items of expense have not yet been settled, but it is believed, however, that the association will have a neat sum to its credit.

A paper is also being circulated outside the present session plan, and thirty or forty citizens have subscribed $50 each for the erection of an auditorium, the payment being fixed upon the contingency that enough be raised to build an auditorium.

WALLACE WYNN IS IN THE MAYOR'S COURT

Is Given Suspended Sentence on His Promise To Pay.

ROSA FAUSNAUGHT SECURES HER LIBERTY

Father of Girl Pays Part of Her Fine and Arranges To Pay Balance. Joseph U. Bush Is Given a Hearing on Charge of Failure To Provide for Daughter.

Wallace Wynn was arrested, Tuesday, by Humane Officer J. W. Ulsh, on an affidavit charging him with failing to provide for his two minor children. The affidavit against Wynn was sworn to by the humane officer. When arraigned before the mayor, Wynn entered a plea of guilty to the charge against him. He was fined $10 and the costs in the case and sentenced to three months in the workhouse, the latter sentence being suspended on his promise to pay two dollars a week for the support of his children.

Rosa Fausnaught, who was arrested, Tuesday, by Officer Thompson for a back fine which she failed to pay, secured her release Tuesday evening. The father of the girl paid $15 of the fine due, and gave an order on his wages for the balance, amounting to $8.75.

Michael O'Mara, who was arrested, Monday, on a charge of failing to provide for his wife and children, and who entered a plea of not guilty before the mayor, Tuesday afternoon, was arraigned Wednesday. O'Mara changed his plea to guilty and was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to six months in the workhouse. On his promise to pay five dollars a week for the support of his family, O'Mara was released. He later signed a temperance pledge for one year.

The bicycle stolen from Councilman W. L. Ullom, over a week ago, was recovered, in part, Tuesday afternoon, by Chief Klinefelter. The frame of the bicycle was found in the cellar of James Hoctor, who resides near Ullom, on Seffner avenue, the wheels and seat being missing. Hoctor informed the officer that he found the wheel in a cornfield near the piano factory, and his story is given credence, as an investigation developed that it had been left there.

David Garfield, who was arrested Sunday night on complaint of his wife that he intended deserting her and their children, was arraigned before the mayor for hearing Wednesday. Garfield was represented by Attorney J. W. Jacoby. The affidavit against Garfield charged him with unlawfully punishing his wife and was sworn to by Humane Officer J. W. Ulsh. At the hearing, that morning, the attorney for the defendant demanded a jury trial, but wanted the trial within a day or two. As it would be almost impossible to secure a jury in that time, and such a date not in accord with the statutes, the mayor fixed the trial for August 14 at 10 o'clock. The bond of the defendant was fixed at $200, which he furnished.

MRS. ALBERT HAINES AGAIN IN CONFINEMENT

Dr. J. B. Taylor Finds Her in Pathetic Mental State.

ORDERED COMMITTED BY PROBATE COURT

Another Examination of the Woman's Mental Condition Is Made by Physicians Who Will Submit a Report to the Court—Mrs. Haines Has Great Deal of Trouble.

Unusually sad indeed is the lot of Mrs. Minnie A. Haines, who deserted her husband in St. Mary's, Pennsylvania, taking with her their nine-year-old daughter, and who later was compelled to surrender the child to the father because of her poverty-stricken condition.

Mrs. Haines is again in the county jail, after having been given her freedom last Sautrday, when she was taken to the home of her brother, Marion Lyons, of Uncapher avenue. She disappeared from the Lyons home some time last Monday afternoon. She wandered about the streets until a late hour, and then spent the rest of the night in the union staion. Tuesday morning, she obtained a position as dishwasher at Hotel Nordica. In the afternoon she complained of being ill, and Dr. J. B. Taylor was called.

"This scar on my face makes me sick," Mrs. Haines told the doctor, who said the scar had been on her face since she was a child. Dr. Taylor declared the woman was insane and notified Probate Judge W. S. Spencer, who ordered her recommitted to jail.

Drs. A. M. Crane and F. Young, who examined her last week when Sheriff John G. Stark filed an affidavit in luncay against her, called at the jail, Tuesday evening. They again put her through a careful examination and will make a report to the probate court.

Sheriff Stark says the woman went to bed early and slept peacefully until after 7 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Nothing has been heard from her husband, Albert Haines, who, last Friday morning, took the little girl back to his home. The same morning Mrs. Haines was found in the streets and locked up the first time.

OBITUARY.

Kennedy—William W. Kennedy, son of Samuel and Margaret Kennedy, eldest of a family of fifteen children, was born in Adams county, Pennsylvania, May 9, 1835, and departed this life, July 29, 1911, at the ripe age of seventy-six years, two months and twenty days. Of this large family, six children have preceded him to the grave, and eight survive Those living are, Sheldon, Homer and Roma Kennedy, and Mrs. Jon Haight, of Kenton; Valentine Kennedy, of Cedar Run, Michigan; Mrs. Jane Pettit, Mrs. Gertrude Oswald and Meda Kennedy, of Portland, Oregon. Mr. Kennedy was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Thomas, and after a few short months, the happy union was severed by death, the mother leaving an infant daughter, now Mrs. Sarah Ann Rogers. In 1863, he was united in marriage with Miss Eliza J. Webb. To them were born four children, one dying in infancy, and Arvilla J. dying at the age of twenty-five years, leaving Mrs. Henry Baker, of Marion; George Kennedy, of Meeker, and Mrs. Sarah Ann Rogers, of Shipsewana, Indiana. Mr. Kennedy leaves to hold in grateful remembrance a loving wife, eight brothers and sisters, three children, nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. He moved from the state of his birth to Ohio when a small boy, and ere he had reached his manhood, the great civil war broke out and demanded the best patriotic blood of the land, and William Kennedy, April 18, 1861, in Marion, on the three-months call by President Lincoln for 75,000 men, enrolled his name in H company, Fourth regiment, O. V. I, as one of its defenders. Before his three months had expired, he reenlisted at Camp Dennison, June 6, 1861, for three years, or during the war. In one of the engagements in which he was engaged, and while climbing the side of a mountain, he fell back on the rough rocks and became disabled, near or at Newmarket, Virginia. He was sent to Cumberland, Maryland, and there received a hospital discharge for disability. He came home and recuperated. Then he reenlisted in G company, Eighty-Second regiment, O. V. I., and served through the war. He honorably did the duties of a soldier, as many of his old comrades have testified. Mr. Kennedy united with the Methodist church about twenty-three years ago, and tried to live a consistent life. He had been a constant sufferer for sixteen years, and during all this time had been compelled to sleep in a chair, but he bore his suffering as bravely as he faced the bullets when he wore the blue. Such men we of today should hold in grateful remembrance. Mr. Kennedy was a kind husband, a loving father. He did the best he could through life. His funeral services were held at Agosta, Tuesday morning, August 1, conducted by Rev. T. J. Carey.

HERBERT E. FIELDS SUES FOR A DIVORCE

Plaintiff Says He Is Afraid of the Defendant.

THREATS TO KILL ARE ALLEGED IN PETITION

Couple Is Married in 1909 and Plaintiff Has Two Children by a Former Marriage—Other Proceedings of Interest in the Local Court of Common Pleas.

Because his wife not only refused to prepare his meals, but even went so far as to threaten to kill him, Herbert E. Fields says he became fearful for his safety when in her presence, and for that reason has brought an action for a divorce. The petition was filed by Attorneys DeGolley & DeGolley in the court of common pleas, Wednesday afternoon. He avers he was married to the defendant, Jennie E. Fields, November 13, 1909. At the time of his marriage he says he was the father of two small children by a former wife, now deceased, and that she became so abusive to the children that he was compelled to seek another home for them. He asks that she be divested of all right of dower and interest in his property.

Because the summons was improperly endorsed, Judge Daniel Babst, of Crestline, has sustained a motion by the defendant in the suit of S. N. Abel and others against Henry N. Oberlander to quash the summons. County Clerk W. W. Klinefelter declares that every summons in such cases has been endorsed in the same manner in the past, and that if the summons in this case is no good, then all of them are worthless.

S. N. Abel and C. M. Coonrod, proprietors of the Palm cafe, sued for $496.09 damages, alleging that Oberlander, who owned the building occupied by them, had violated the terms of the lease. Following a fire that gutted the place, Abel and Coonrod claimed that they were compelled to fix up the room at their own expense.

Oberlander, through General E. B. Finley, of Bucyrus, filed a motion to quash the summons because it was not endorsed with the amount of the judgment that would be taken if the defendant failed to answer.

The summons showed the amount sued for, but failed to show the amount of judgment that would be taken in the event the defendant failed to answer

In sustaining the defendant's motion, Judge Babst cited a number of sections of law and gave a supreme court ruling along the same lines

Attorneys Mouser & Moloney, representing the plaintiffs, announce that the case will be carried up.

In the matter of David Washam against the State of Ohio, Attorney John H. Clark has filed a motion to dismiss the petition-in-error because more than thirty days have elapsed since the filing of it and the case has not been heard A similar motion has been filed by Attorney Elmer T. Boyd in the matter of William Snyder against the State of Ohio. Both are bootlegging cases.

UNFORTUNATE MAN IS WANDERING AT LARGE

Relatives Are Searching for William L. Guthery.

WANDERS AWAY FROM PRIVATE SANATARIUM

It Is Feared He Is Suffering of a Mental Lapse and Is Unable To Identify Himself—A Description of Mr. Guthery—Liberal Reward Is Offered for Information.

William L. Guthery, forty-nine years old, one of the best-known farmers in the county, has strangely disappeared from McMillen's private sanatarium at Shepherd, a suburb of Columbus, and his relatives fear that he is now wandering about somewhere in the country, suffering from a memory lapse and unable to identify himself.

Mr. Guthery lost several thousand dollars in an Arkansas rice land deal a year or so ago. This worried him considerably, and he was taken to the sanatarium for mental treatment. Several months ago he escaped and walked to his home in the country, near LaRue. He made his last escape, last Thursday night, and nothing has been heard or seen of him since. He had no money. His relatives have authorities all over the state looking for him. They think he will be found in the country.

The missing man is a Mason and a member of all the York rite bodies. He wears a Masonic square and compass on his watch chain. He is about five feet, eight inches in height and weighs 155 or 160 pounds. He has dark brown eyes, dark complexion and dark hair, is smooth-shaven and not talkative. He is slightly bald on the crown of his head.

A liberal reward will be paid for any information leading to the missing man's discovery.

Caledonia, O., Aug. 4.—[Special]—Three children had a narrow escape from death on the Erie railroad bridge, east of the depot, Tuesday afternoon, as Big Four passenger, No. 5, was pulling into town They were George and Sarah, children of James Noblett and Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Noblett, all residing east of town. Their ages were eight twelve and ten years respectively. The children were walking to town on the railroad and as they entered the bridge, they noticed the approach of a train. They began running. The lad fell down and their pace was impeded. Agent W. H. Harrington, noticed their plight and ran toward the train to flag it. The engineer noticed the children and put on the brakes until the little people were off the bridge. The spectators at the depot were very much excited.

Mrs. Earl Warwick, of Cleveland, arrived here Tuesday for a visit with friends.

The W. F. M. S. held the regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Frank Lyons, one mile east of town Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. M. R. Harrison, chairman, and was very interesting. Fine refreshments were served by the hostess.

George Coulter and niece, Miss Mattie Kerr, of Bucyrus, were guests of Mrs. Mattie Kerr and other relatives here last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mosher and three children, and Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey Caris, of Fulton, and Mrs. Nettie Jennings and four chidren, of Cleveland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mosher, Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Jennings and children will remain for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foster, of Marion, visited Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Underwood.

Mrs. James Hinds went to Marion, Tuesday afternoon, where she will visit several days with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alsdorf, of Mt. Vernon, spent the latter part of last week with Dr. and Mrs. J. B Kring.

Mrs. Charles Highly and children Goldeth and Herbert, and Mrs. Levi Cornwell and daughters, Sybil and Edith, of Marion, and Mrs. Frank Showers, of west of here, were guests of relatives near Mt. Gilead, Saturday and Sunday.

Joseph Doyle, of near Richwood, arrived here Saturday for a visit with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Doyle, of north of town.

Mrs. H. N. Geddis and daughter, Wanda, and Mrs. G. D. Marggraf were entertained by relatives in Marion the latter part of last week.

George Henry began drilling for oil or gas, last week, on the land back of his residence on Water street. He has 3,000 fet of cable and is prepared to drill the entire distance, if necessary, before giving up the attempt.

Mrs. Samantha Tedrow, of Marion, visited Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Smith.

J. W. Smith, of Galion, is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. J. B. Kring, this week

Miss Cartha Bell is enjoying an outing with a party of LaRue friends at Indian lake.

Rev. G. F. Thompson, formerly of this place, but now of Woodstock, was calling on old friends here last Thursday.

Lewis Fields and Joseph Debus, of Chicago, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Fields, of southeast of town.

Mrs. F. W. Sterrit and son, Keith, of Marengo, and Miss Thelma Davis, of Cardington, are spending the week with friends here.

Miss Lovina Drake, of south of town, returned last week from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Grover Baird, of Fowlersville, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fields and children, Catherine, Harry and Foster, of Lima, and Miss Alice Wallace, of Kenton, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Fields this week.

Dr. John Thomas and Robert Thomas, of Columbus, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Anderson, Tuesday.

The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church met with Mrs. William Fields, of south Water street, Thursday afternoon. About twenty members of the society responded to roll call. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Kittie Dilts, chariman. During the business meeting, two new members were added to the list. It was decided to hold a social session for the members and their families in the church parlors, the evening of August 22. An interesting program will be rendered and lunch served. Instead of the literary program, interesting talks were given by various members, on canning, pickling and preserving. In this manner, many valuable recipes were obtained. The guests at the society were Mrs. Fred Busch and Mrs. W. H. Follen.

The members of the W. C. T. U. entertained the W. F. M. S in the church parlors, Tuesday afternoon. A miscellaneous program was enjoyed and a lunch served to about thirty guests.

"MOTHER" THEW AT THE FIREMEN'S CONVENTION

She Speaks to the Fire Chiefs at Cedar Point.

A Sandusky special to the Cincinnati Enquirer, Thursday, under date of August 2, says:

Matilda Thew, known as the "Mother of the Firemen," as a result of her efforts to better the firemen's working conditions, is attending the annual convention of the Ohio Firemen's association at Cedar Point. She addressed the firemen tonight.

The "double shift," an arrangement fathered by the Firemen's Protective association as a means of giving firemen twelve hours off duty and a similar length of time on duty, claims much of the fire chiefs' time during the convention.

George Knoflich, of Mansfield, was selected president; D. K. Moser, of Warren, secretary, and William Swift, of Columbus, treasurer. Resolutions were adopted favoring the teaching in the public schools of the great dangers of fire.

Odd satin and taffeta coats in habit shape were in great favor at the recent race meetings of the French capital.

GREEN CAMP WOMAN VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Mrs. J. G. McNamara Breaks Her Left Leg.

ATTEMPTS TO JUMP WHEN HORSE STARTS

Catches Foot Under Wagon Seat and Strikes Road on Her Face—Services at Baptist Church at Green Camp Suspended During the Absence of the Pastor.

Green Camp, O., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. G. McNamara met with a serious accident, Monday afternoon, while returning from the country, where she with several other ladies had assisted Mrs. Charles Williams in serving threshers supper in the field. While returning, some dishes in a basket in the back part of the wagon slipped out. The team was stopped, and in starting one of the horses lunged forward. This frightened Mrs. McNamara, and in jumping from the wagon she caught her foot under the seat, throwing her to the ground on her face. In some manner the bone in her left leg was broken between the knee and ankle.

AGRICULTURAL TRAIN IN CITY THURSDAY

Is Located in Front of Big Four Freight-House.

BRINGS A MESSAGE ON FARM IMPROVEMENT

Special Train Arrives Shortly Before 8 O'Clock and Remains Fifty Minutes — Rain Prevents Many from Taking Advantage of Opportunity for Lectures.

Owing to the rain, only a small company visited the special agricultural train which stopped here fifty minutes Thursday morning, being stationed in front of the Big Four freight house.

The train, which consisted of three coaches and a baggage-car besides the engine, was furnished and operated by the Big Four railroad company and the lectures were given by instructors from the college of agriculture of the Ohio State university at Columbus. A. B. Graham, superintendent of agricultural extension at the college, the man who is pushing this educational work in Ohio, had charge of the train. The railroad was represented by John C. Enig, industrial agent and several other officials of the Big Four. The instructional force consisted of Professors McCall, Waid, Livingston, Darst, Bear, Jonson and Bachtell from the college.

The special arrived here shortly before 8 o'clock. It left Galion at 6:45 o'clock, and a lecture was given at Caledonia, although but a few farmers were gathered at.

Lecture on Train.

The lectures were given on board the train. When the train pulled up at the station, the crowd, which was waiting for it, was hustled into the train and comfortably seated. Within five minutes the lecturers were busy, one in each car, each giving the same instruction. The time was divided into equal periods and one period given to each subject.

One of the most important themes discussed here was wheat culture. The work of the Ohio experiment station at Wooster was shown, and it was demonstrated that the yield of wheat was due to tile drainage, tillage, use of lime and the use of chemical fertilizers. The liberal use of commercial fertilizers, especially the carriers of phosphoric acid is essential to the best results with wheat.

Bulletins Given.

Illustrated bulletins were given out to the farmers dealing with soil improvement, wheat culture and the general improvement of farms. Full opportunity was also given the farmers to ask questions on the farm work in general. As a whole, the gathering proved of much benefit to those who visited the train.

At 9 o'clock, the train left here for LaRue, where a lecture was given, after which it went to Mt. Victory and other points along the line of the Big Four. It will visit various points until next Monday.

The first speaker called the attention of his audience to two large photographs showing the yield of wheat on two plots at the Ohio experiment station. On one plot the average yield for the last sixteen years was only 11.3 bushels an acre, and on the other the average yield, during the same period was 27.5 bushels an acre. These plots were located side by side, of the same kind of soil, the difference in yield being due to the different treatment they had received, stated the speaker. An outline of the manner in which these experimental plots had been handled formed the basis of his lecture on soil fertility. The main points in his talk were as follows:

Crop Production.

The factors concerned in crop production and soil improvement are drainage, rotation of crops, good tillage, use of lime, manure and organic matter, and commercial fertilizers. There are comparatively few farms in Ohio which could not be improved by the use of tile. Drainage removes surplus water, allowing plants to root deeper, thus they are enabled to better withstand drouths; makes soil warmer, and actually increases the amount of water available to the plant.

Every farm should have a crop rotation suited to its needs, especially one in which clover forms a part. Deep plowing and thorough cultivation help to make soils more productive. A farm which will not grow clover cannot be increased in fertility at a profit. The persistent failure of clover is due to the lack of lime in the soil. One ton of caustic lime or two tons of ground limestone to the acre should be used. And keep the soil well filled with organic matter. Use all the barnyard manure, plow under crop residues and do not burn straw, stalks or stubble.

Soils in the State.

The last point made by this speaker was that Ohio soils are lacking in the element phosphorus, and that many of them need nitrogen and potassium. To get the best results with wheat it will be necessary to use some form of commercial fertilize especially one containing pho phorus.

The next instructor took up th subject of wheat culture. He pointe out that many farmers neglect th proper cultural methods, and fail select varieties of wheat that a adapted to their soil and climat conditions, with the result that th do not get full returns from the soil.

Preparation of seedbed was giv first consideration. The speak showed by means of large phot what is meant by the ideal seedbe where the land is plowed early, w pulverized and compacted below wi a fine, loose layer at the surface. contrast to this he showed the effe of late plowing, and how the tur ing under of a heavy coat of manu or other organic matter would affe soil capillarity. He emphasized t fact that the roller and harr should follow the plow, and th disking of stubble land before plo ing is frequently good practice.

The best time to sow wheat in t northern part of the state is betwe September 5 and 10, and one d later for each five miles south. Whe Hessian fly is to be avoided la seeding is advisable.

Depth of Seeding.

As to the depth of seeding, t instructor stated that the seed, u der favorable conditons, should covered to a depth of one and o half to two inches, but in dry s sons three inches is not too deep. moist soil is not found within th inches of the surface, seeding sho be delayed until after a rain. Ei pecks to the acre has given the l results at the Ohio station. drill should be carefully tried out the barn floor before seeding tim

That the selection of better v eties is the easiest and chea method of improving wheat yi was another point brought out by lecturer. He stated that in thirt years of test in Ohio, Daws Golden Chaff, Gypsy and Poole w the three varieties giving hig yields. However, when milling q ities were considered, Valley, Ni and Gypsy were the three stan highest. Of the new varieties inated by selection at the Ohio tion, Poole selection 6545, G selection 6100 and Fultz selec 53100 are most promising.

FARMERS' FREE LIST BILL WINS

Passes Senate Forty-Eight to Thirty.

HOUSE IS EXPECTED TO ACCEPT MEASURE

The Bill Will Then Go to the President.

The Same Republican-Democrat Coalition That Last Week Forces Passage by Senate of Wool Revision Bill, Triumphs for Second Time When Free List Measure Is Pushed Through.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The same progressive Republican-Democratic coalition that last week forced passage by the senate of the Democratic wool revision bill, triumphed for a second time in the upper house today, when the farmers' free list bill was passed, forty-eight to thirty.

After being defeated as presented from the house, the bill, carrying an amendment by Senator Kern, Democrat, of Indiana, and Gronna, Republican, of north Dakota, providing for free meats from all countries giving the same concession, was promptly put through.

The measure was declared lost by Vice President Sherman when the senate voted thirty-nine to thirty-nine, the rules providing that a tie vote kills the pending measure. The Kern amendment was adopted, forty-nine to twenty-nine.

As the main amendment came from the Democrats it is expected that the house will accept it and that the free list bill will go to the president.

The successful motion to reconsider the first vote was made by La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin.

Against the Bill.

Those voting against the bill were the following Republicans: Bourne, of Oregon; Bradley, of Kentucky; Brandegee, of Connecticut; Briggs, of New Jersey; Burnham, of New Hampshire; Burton, of Ohio; Clark, of Wyoming; Crane, of Massachusetts; Cullom, of Illinois; Curtis, of Kansas; Gamble, of South Dakota; Guggenheim, of Colorado; Heyburn, of Idaho; Jones, of Washington; Lippitt, of Rhode Island; Lodge, of Massachusetts; Lorimer, of Illinois; McLean, of Connecticut; Nixon, of Nevada; Oliver, of Pennsylvania; Page, of Vermont; Perkins, of California; Richardson, of Delaware; Root, of New York; Smith, of Michigan; Smoot, of Utah; Stephenson, of Wisconsin; Townsend, of Michigan; Warren, of Wyoming; Wetmore, of Rhode Island.

Those Not Voting.

Those not voting were: Culberson, Democrat, of Texas; Dillingham, Republican, of Vermont; Dupont, Republican, of Delaware; Frye, Republican, of Maine; Gallinger, Republican, of New Hampshire; Lea, Democrat, of Tennessee; Penrose, Republican, of Pennsylvania; Percy, Democrat, of Mississippi; Rayner, Democrat, of Maryland; Sutherland, Republican, of Utah; Tillman, Democrat, of South Carolina; Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi.

Some of these were paired. There are two vacancies.

Kern's Amendment.

The Kern amendment reads:

"To make meats, flour and cereal products free of entry, provided such commodities came from foreign counties with which the United States has a reciprocal treaty, or which admits without restriction American cotton, corn, wheat, oats, horses, cattle and hogs."

The one lone Republican progressive to vote with the standpatters was Jonathan Bourne, of Oregon, president of the National Progressive Republican league. Senator Bailey, of Texas, was the solitary Democrat to register his vote in opposition to the free list measure.

The successful amendment by Gronna, a progressive, provides for the free admission of boots and shoes from all kinds of leather. The bill as passed by the house only admitted shoes made from bovine leather.

Amendments Defeated.

Washington, Aug. 1.—When the farmers' free list bill came up in the senate, this afternoon, an amendment by Senator Gronna, Republican, of North Dakota, to place cement on the free list was defeated on a viva voce vote. On a second amendment by Gronna, to admit coal, coke and slack free of duty, a roll call was demanded, and it was defeated, twenty-three to fifty-two.

Gronna then proposed free admission of apples, berries, grape fruit and similar products, but his amendments were defeated on viva voce votes.

Bailey, Democrat, of Texas, moved to strike meat of all kinds from the free list. The result was: Yeas, fourteen; nays, sixty-three.

Kern, Democrat, of Indiana, offered an amendment that meats of all kinds shall be admitted from all foreign countries that agree to a reciprocal concession with the United States. It was adopted, years, forty-nine; nays, twenty-nine.

Another Beaten.

Gore, Democrat, of Oklahoma, offered an amendment providing for free wood pulp and print paper. It was defeated, twenty-five to fifty-three.

An amendment by Gore, that type setting machines be placed on the free list, was voted down.

Gore also moved to provide for negotiating commercial unions with countries on the American hemisphere. This was declared out of order.

Bailey revived the free lemons amendment. It was defeated without roll call.

Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts, offered an amendment to place rice and flour on the free list. It was lost, thirty to forty-five.

Underwood To Fight.

Washington, Aug. 1.—"If one of these tariff bills go to the president and he signs them, we will continue here and finish the work of tariff revision this session," was the statement made to the house this afternoon by Chairman Underwood, Democrat, of Alabama, of the ways and means committee.

Speaker Clark today named as conferees on the wool bill:

Chairman Underwood; Randall, Democrat, of Texas; Harrison, Democrat, of New York; Payne, Republican, Republican, of New York, and Dalzell, Republican, of Pennsylvania.

TELL TROUBLES TO PRESIDENT

Woolgrowers Condemn LaFollette Measure.

THEY URGE TAFT TO VETO THE BILL

And Want People to Understand Situation.

Through Their National President, Who Represents Nearly 1,000,000 Sheepmen Throughout the Country, an Appeal Is Sent to President Taft—Says the Wool Industry Is Threatened by Bill.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Through F. R. Gooding, president of the National Woolgrowers' association, the 1,000,000 woolgrowers of the country have registered with President Taft their protest against haphazard and ill-considered revision of the wool tariff and have urged him to veto any revision bill which comes to him at this time.

Here is the letter from President Gooding which Mr. Taft received:

"As president of the National Woolgrowers' association, I most earnestly protest against the ill-advised LaFollette measure as passed by the senate. Any tariff legislation on the wool schedule previous to the report of the tariff board is dangerous to the advancement of a great principle that you have inaugurated for the adjustment of tariff legislation and would delay what should be a great principle of government in this country for many years. There can be no better evidence of the need of a tariff board than the hasty and ill-advised measure just passed by the senate. The woolgrowers have not had an opportunity to present their case to the American people. We have been waiting with confidence for the report of the tariff board and have assisted in every way the work of this board, believing that their report would be accepted by the American people and bring about permanent settlement, so much needed to give stability and prosperity to all industries.

"I appeal to you, Mr. President, in the name of nearly 1,000,000 woolgrowers of the country, who earnestly pray that you will allow no measure affecting the wool industry to become a law until all the facts as to the cost of production of wool and cloth have been submitted to congress."

LIQUOR CAUSES A TRAGEDY IN SOUTH

Young Man, Crazed by Drink, Carves Friend to Pieces.

Raleigh, Aug. 1.—Literally cut to pieces, Paul Stamey was killed by Seth Weed at Canton. Stamey and Wood, young farmers, both under 21, were playfully "pranking" with knives. Wood, who had been drinking, finally became angry and began cutting in earnest, with the result that Stamey received 17 deep gashes. The artery of his left leg was severed and he died in about 15 minutes. Wood is in Haywood county jail at Waynesville, where he was committed on the verdict of a coroner's jury. The young men were close personal friends and the killing was clearly the result of too much liquor.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; TWO GIRLS KILLED

Accident Occurs at Grade Crossing Near Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1.—In an automobile accident on the Erie railroad crossing at North Randall, Miss Marguerite Tuller, 19, of Chicago, and her hostess here Miss Louise Snow, were killed. Donald French, son of W. H. French, president of the Molineux Machine and Foundry company, reported engaged to Miss Tuller, barely escaped death in the collision with the Erie's Cleveland-Pittsburg flyer. He leaped, as did Miss Snow. Miss Snow's neck was broken, while French suffered serious injuries and may die.

PATIENTS LOSE LIVES IN FIRE

Asylum at Hamilton, Ontario, Destroyed.

IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL THE NUMBER OF DEAD

Several Bodies Already Taken from Ruins.

Conflagration Is Marked by Display of Heroism on Part of Doctors, Nurses and Attendants Seldom Equaled in History of Canada. Work of Removing Dangerous Inmates Proves Hard Task.

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 1.—Eight bodies have been taken from the ruins of the Hamilton insane asylum which was destroyed by fire early today. It is feared that there are many additional bodies in the ruins, which are now being searched.

There were 600 patients in the institution when the fire broke out and eighty-five, considered among the most dangerous, were confined on the fifth floor. The asylum was located on the mountain outside of the city and in an almost inaccessible position so far as the city firemen were concerned.

The fire was marked by a display of heroism on the part of the doctors, nurses and attendants seldom equaled in the history of Canada. Many of the patients were absolutely helpless from diseases that confined them to their beds. Others, their reason gone so that the instinct of self-preservation was entirely absent, saw in the leaping flames and crackling sparks merely the splendid spectacle presented for their entertainment. The result was that in numerous instances the endangered inmates of the wards had to be fairly lifted on the shoulders of the hospital force and carried into the road.

Most of the fatalities occurred on the top floor where the hopelessly insane were confined. The smoke pouring into the big room, filled it so that it was impossible to see anything and the doctors and attendants in charge there had to grope their way about the room. By the time the attendants got there the escape by the stairs had been cut off, and there were only the windows left through which to get the helpless to safety.

A Difficult Task.

The first firemen to reach the scene quickly spread life nets and a dozen patients were dragged to the windows and thrown out, falling into the nets unharmed. Many of the insane cried aloud with terror, their shrieks terrifying the people outside and it was only after some of them had been rendered unconscious by the dense smoke that they could be rescued.

The fire was caused by defective wiring and burned with great intensity for more than three hours. A large part of the city fire department was hurried to the scene, but before it arrived on the mountain top, the entire wing of the big structure was blazing.

The main dining room, which was farthest removed from the scene of fire, was used as a place to confine the patients as fast as they were taken out. Some tried to escape and had to be knocked unconscious before their lives could be saved.

There would probably have been no fatalities had it not been that the windows on the upper floors were covered with a fine wire mesh to prevent the dangerous patients from escaping. The rescuers found it almost impossible to wrench this covering off and much valuable time was lost while the attendants secured big shears to cut through the guarded windows.

The shrieks of the frantic patients could be plainly heard in the south end of this city and an enormous crowd soon gathered and tried to help.

As soon as the ruins had cooled sufficiently, the work of searching for bodies was begun. It will be several hours before the records can be checked and the exact number of dead learned, but it is believed this morning that it will not be more than twelve or fifteen.

Hot cinders and the like can quickly be removed by sweeping the eye with a small goose feather dipped in oil.

STATE MACHINE UNFOLDS PLANS

Democrats Dictate Board of Review Appointment.

FINLEY'S FRIEND GIVEN A PLACE

The Columbus Organization Is Turned Down.

Secretary of State Graves, Oil Inspector Finley and John O'Dwyer, of Toledo, Hold Balance of Power Against Treasurer Creamer and Attorney General Hogan and Slate Is Pushed Through.

Columbus, O., Aug. 1.—The so-called Democratic state machine, represented by State Oil Inspector William L. Finley and John O'Dwyer, of Toledo, were able, late Monday, to dictate all the board of review appointments made by the state board of assessors and appraisers. In Columbus, the local Democratic organization was turned down and Finley's close friend, Charles M. Luthey, given the place. In Toledo, O'Dwyer's man, William F. Malone, won without difficulty.

The Cincinnati appointment was not made. All that was settled in regard to it, it is said, was that it should not go to Lewis G. Bernard, but further than that, the members of the state board were unable to agree on any one else.

As three votes were necessary to elect, Secretary of State Graves, who stood by the state machine, was able to hold the balance of power against State Treasurer Creamer and Attorney Hogan, for the reason that State Auditor Fullington, a Republican, persisted in voting for Republicans. Graves held out for Luthey until the twenty-fifth ballot, when Hogan came over and, along with Fullington, made the selection.

All appointments made were Democrats. The others were:

Alliance, M. C. Moore; East Liverpool, C. A. Ferguson, reappointed; Findlay, Charles H. Sampson, reappointed; Greenville, William A. Brown, Jr.; Marion, W. B. Jessup; Newark, William H. Anderson; Niles, Fred M. Walsh; Salem, John S. Strohacker, reappointed; Toledo, William F. Malone; Warren, Peter W. Boyle; Youngstown, Martin Dunn, reappointed.

MANOEUVRES OF ATLANTIC FLEET GOING ALONG MERRILY

FIRE AND RESCUE DRILL ABOARD THE DELAWARE IN PROVINCETOWN HARBOR PHOTO BY C.W. WATERMAN

The manoeuvres of the Atlantic fleet are now going along merrily. The accompanying picture shows a set of husky tars engaged in a fire and rescue drill on board the battle ship Delaware at Providence Harbor, Mass. The sailor boys go about their work with a true spirit, and Uncle Sam is right proud of them.

LITTLE DOG SAVES LIVES OF FAMILY

But Gives Own Life in Fire at Marysville Today.

Marysville, O., July 31.—A little dog saved the lives of the family of M. C. Madden, at Milford Center, this morning, but lost his own life in the fire that destroyed the meat store of Louis Epps and the flat above where the Maddens lived. The barking of the dog awoke the family in time for them to escape although all their household goods were destroyed. The total loss was $5,000.

Feathers that have grown grimy may be given a bath in alcohol, after which they should be shaken over heat or in the hot sun until dry.

BANDIT SHOT AS HE ROBS VAULT

Marshal of Montana Town Is a Sure Shot.

HIS ACTION SAVES BANK THOUSANDS

Companions of Dead Robber Escape to Hills.

Trio of Bandits Drives Bank Cashier and Others into Corner, Money Is Secured and Men Prepare To Decamp When Accidental Discharge of Gun Attracts Marshal, Who Rushes into Bank.

Harlem, Mont., Aug. 1.—One bandit is dead and armed posses today are scouring the country toward the Bear Paw mountains for two others who escaped yesterday after attempting to rob Senator Everett's First National bank here. But for Marshal Taswell, who killed one of the bandits, the attempt would have been a success. The men rode into town, dismounted near the bank, and left their horses in the care of one of the trio. The other two entered the bank.

Cashier Natch and Assistant Cashier Rasmussen were covered. Then the leader left his companion on guard and entered the adjoining building where Attorney Collins and a client were sitting. The robber marched them into the back offices. With his companion guarding the four, the bandit gathered everything in sight. Then he turned to the vault leaving his revolver on the counter. He came back for the weapon, but dropped it, causing it to be discharged.

A passerby notified Marshal Taswell, who opened fire on the man who was just emerging from the vault with a sack containing $10,000. His first shot pierced the bandit's heart. Then a fusillade began as the second robber joined the man with the horses. A heavily-armed posse was hurriedly organized and pursuit begun in automobiles. The bandits made careful preparations for escape by cutting telegraph and telephone wires. It is believed the robbers belonged to the old Kid Curry gang, which had headquarters in the Little Rockies.

BARN AND CONTENTS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Loss of $3,000 with Insurance Amounting to $900.

LaRue, O., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The fine bank barn of J. C. Blue, six miles northwest of LaRue, was destroyed by fire about 10 o'clock, Monday evening. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss is estimated at $3,000 with only about $900 insurance.

Mr. Blue had been in Richwood and returned home late in the evening. The rest of the family had retired. While Mr. Blue was watering his horse Mrs. Blue happened to awake and looking out of the window noticed the fire. She rushed from the house and succeeded in getting a buggy from the burning structure. Mr. Blue and his sons were soon upon the scene, but the fire had gained such headway that nothing more could be saved. The barn was one of the largest in this vicinity.

Aside from the barn, a large granary adjoining burned. The house caught fire several times, but those fighting the fire succeeded in saving the house, which was only a short distance away.

With the buildings, forty tons of hay, two fine thoroughbred dogs, a buggy and eleven sets of harness were destroyed.

An Attachment.

In default of the payment of an account of about $10, a writ of attachment was issued in the court of Justice Charles E. Gompf, Monday, in the case of William S. Stout against John H. Hudson. A roller-top desk and an office chair shipped here by the defendant from Bucyrus were attached.

Clear black coffee diluted with water and containing a little ammonia will clean and restore black clothes.

NOTED AMERICAN ARTIST IS DEAD

Edwin A. Abbey Passes Away in London.

HE BEGAN TO DRAW WHEN A SMALL BOY

And Lived To Paint Picture at a Royal Order.

By His Series of Great Decorative Panels in Boston Library and Other Notable Works, Abbey Raised Himself to the Front Rank of American Painters—Sketch of His Career as Artist.

London, Aug. 1.—Edwin A. Abbey, the noted American painter, died here today.

Edwin A. Abbey began to draw sketches of his brothers and sisters before he was out of knickerbockers. He lived to paint at royal order the spectacle of the coronation of an English king and by his series of great decorative panels in the Boston library and other notable works he raised himself to the front rank of American painters.

Abbey was born in Philadelphia April 1, 1852. His first published bit of art appeared in Oliver Optic's "Our Boys and Girls," in 1866. It was an illustrated rebus.

Abbey's masterpiece in oils, "The Quest of the Holy Grail," which he did for the Boston library, has been pronounced perfect in every detail of architecture, dress and heraldry. His "Coronation of Edward VII" has been praised by antiquarians because of its perfection and accuracy of detail.

Weds New York Girl.

Abbey married Miss Mary Gertrude Mead, the daughter of Frederick Mead, in New York, in 189(.

Abbey's career was one of continuous success. Two years after his first work for the Oliver Optic book, he learned wood engraving. Before he was twenty, Harper's were accepting his engravings. He became a student in the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts and did wonderful work in black and white.

In 1883, he was elected a member of the Royal Institute of Water Colors, of England. His first great honors came in 1890, when his "Parting Day Morning" was not only accepted by the Royal academy, but given the most favorable place. Six years later he was elected an associate in the exclusive body and in 1908, as a result "R. A." was accorded him.

BANKER MAY BE GIVEN HIS FREEDO

John R. Walsh Stands Good Chance for a Parole.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Notified that Washington that the last obstacle had been removed by the quashing of indictments in Chicago, attorney for John R. Walsh, convicted Chicago banker, who is serving a term in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, announced today that they would appear before the government parole board in Leavenworth, on September 12, and ask that Walsh be freed.

Burns Fatal to Girl.

Akron, O., Aug. 1.—While leaning over a gas stove, Chrystal M. Talbot, 13, of Kenmore, caught fire and before assistance could reach her was burned to death. The mother and father of the girl were in business district at the time. The girl rushed from the house a mass of flames, and to the home of a neighbor, where she dropped to the floor and expired.

Poison Tablets Kill Child.

Norwalk, O., Aug. 1.—Edwin Frank Petee, 14 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Petee, accidentally got hold of a box of strychnine tablets and swallowed all but one or two. The child died shortly after terrible convulsions.

Seeks to Imitate Father.

Bellefontaine, O., Aug. 1.—Jesse West, son of the late Judge W. H. West, has entered the list as a candidate from Logan county for constitutional convention. West was the delegate from this county in 1878.

Jealous Husband Uses Gun.

Coshocton, O., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Cutshall is in a serious condition, probably will die as the result having been shot by her husband when he met her in the road. Accompanied by Washington Philabaum.

Brakeman Is Killed.

Coshocton, O., Aug. 1.—Charles Lewis, brakeman, of Columbus, was killed here when a freight train on the Panhandle railroad was sideswiped by a cut of cars from the Walhonding division.

Kills Her Husband.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1.—Georgiadiro was shot to death by his wife when he tried to enter her home against her protests.

Young Child Drowns.

Columbus, O., Aug. 1.—Betker, one-year-old, the son of the five children of Abraham Betker, fell into two gallons of water in a wash boiler and was drowned Monday evening.

When washing glassware put into the hot water sidewise to prevent breaking.

YOUNG MINER IS RELEASED

Rescuers Reach the Entombed Missourian.

CLARY IS RUSHED TO MOTHER'S HOME

Where He All but Collapses from Exhaustion.

The Digging of Shaft To Reach Clary Goes Through Seventy-Eight Feet of Earth and Limestone and Takes Three Days To Get Near Enough To Pass Food to the Entombed Miner.

Joplin, Mo., Aug 2.—Joseph Clary, the young miner entombed three days in the cave-in White Oak mine was rescued at 8.30 o'clock this morning and all but collapsed from exhaustion and emotion as he was carried off to the home of his mother who was made ill by her son's experience The digging of the shaft through seventy-eight feet of earth and limestone took three days, men and boys working in the shaft day and night

Fully 300 persons gathered early about the new shaft, eagerly awaiting the outcome of uninterrupted digging and drilling which was to save the strong-nerved, courageous young miner In the restless throng were wives of many of Clary's coworkers in the zinc mines, some holding tight their young children whose future points to a life in the underground workshop

When Dr. William Barker, Dr. J. Dowed and Clary's father, at the top of the shaft, called out to the crowd: "They've got him," a great shout went up from every throat.

Silence Reigns.

Then a hush spread over the place as if all were waiting to hear young Clary's voice as he was nearing the surface in a mine bucket. His clothes were water soaked and his body grimy from imprisonment for seventy-two hours, which were divided into days for him His hopeful manner which was transmitted to his rescuers only this morning as they conversed through the six-inch bore, seemed to disappear. He had refused to feel the pain of his ebbing strength when in the mine. He had heard the rumbling of drills and the knowledge that he would be rescued made him strong as he stood in water reaching his armpits Now, as he was saved, he collapsed.

Many friends of the family moved on to the Clark home, a quarter of a mile off, as young Clary was taken away from the mine. Some, who were mothers of other young miners, wept as if the rescue signalized some new disaster. They knew what it all meant to Mrs. Thomas Clary, whose life was despaired of before she talked with her son over a telephone and knew she would soon see him alive again

Rescuers Threatened.

Joplin, Mo, Aug. 2.—Well, and protesting against being "handled like a baby," Joseph Clary, thirty-two years old, son of Thomas Clary, a pioneer zinc and lead operator, was rescued this morning at 8:03 o'clock from the narrow prospect drift of the White Oak mine, east of Joplin. He had been entombed seventy-two hours.

The work of rescue was hastened today by freshly-caving ground, the lives of hundreds of spectators about the shaft being endangered, as the earth slowly settled. Faster and faster the ominous zigzagging crack that marked the line between the caving and the solid ground, widened and the crowd surged back, watching the perilous task of those who labored at the hand windlass at the top of the shaft and trying to picture the plight of the half-dozen rescuers and the entombed miner, seventy-eight feet beneath, should the slice of earth give way and crash down through the shaft, choking it again and entombing the entire rescue party

After the crack widened, ropes were not required to keep spectators back But relatives of the entombed man did not waver. A sister of Clary, Mrs W H. Brookshire, stood within a foot of the open shaft. It had been intended to leave Clary at the bottom of the shaft an hour after removing him from the drift, so that he might get accustomed to fresher air, but the possibility of the entire party being buried alive and the pleadings of the father hastened the work of rescue, and at 8:30 o'clock Clary, blindfolded to protect him from sun blindness, was lifted to the top

"What's the use of all this monkey business?" he asked as willing hands reached out and pulled him over the side of the shaft, he even then showing indications of collapse.

"I'm all right," he said.

Clary's Story.

A blanket was wrapped about him and he was removed in an ambulance to his home His invalid mother, who for three days had lived in a fever of apprehension, was soon talking with her boy

"I wasn't scared from the first, mother Clary said. "When the ground slid, I stood to one side. The roof of the drift a little way back, was of solid limestone and I knew it wouldn't cave in The air was pretty good at first and it kept getting worse. I wasn't excited because I knew they would begin looking for me. It seemed like an age, though, down there in the dark, before I heard a thumping above my head and then I guessed what was going on. I knew they were drilling a hole to give me air. How long it was before the pounding of the drill seemed to come in almost upon me and then suddenly cease, I didn't know, but it seemed as if it might have been Monday morning.

"After the pounding of the drill had ceased, it dawned upon me that the hole had missed. It seemed another age before I again heard sounds. This time the pounding of the drill was even plainer than before, and the hole came in at one side of the drift and a flood of fresh air swept in beside me. I judged this occurred late Monday night."

The real time was Monday morning.

"I could still hear faint sounds of drilling, but I thought they had moved the drill to the north side of the ground and were trying to drill into the old north drift. I was getting mighty hungry. I would have eaten a plug of tobacco if I had had it.

"The best thing of all was when the drilling punctured the hole in the roof of the drift, away down toward the shaft. I had to wade in water to my waist to get there. It sounded good, I can tell you, to hear some one shout down to me and that first drink of milk and whisky was the finest thing I ever tasted. They can't get me to drink milk at home."

During the last night the water rose higher and Clary was up to his armpits when rescued by R. P. Brown, a Duenweg miner.

WOOD SCRAPS ARE USED IN MANY WAYS

Tag Ends Left from Big Work Are Not Wasted.

In these days of high priced lumber the utilization of the small pieces of wood formerly considered of little or no value assumes considerable importance The Woodworker gives a number of uses for these scraps.

Some furniture makers glue together small, clear pieces down to one inch wide and one foot long and find that they serve very well for the interior framework of bureaus, chiffoniers, sideboards and similar articles

Wheelwrights save the ends cut from spokes and shape them in lathes for chisel, gimlet, auger and other small tool handles. Wagon builders occasionally make use of scraps of hardwoods for lining brake blocks. Sash and blind makers save their scraps for the match factories, or if the pieces are large enough they are worked into corner blocks, rose blocks and balusters

Coopers recut broken or defective staves of the larger sizes and make kegs or smaller vessels of them Small headings are economically manufactured in that way. Occasionally defective staves and headings are made into dowels. Basket-makers save the cores from which veneer has been cut and saw them into thin slats for baskets and crate covers.

Brush manufacturers have made some headway in using waste from furniture factories, but the pieces are of so many sizes and of such irregular shapes that success has been only partial A small porch chair shop has been able to draw a considerable part of its raw material from the waste of boat factories.

Some of the makers on interior finish work their odds and ends of softwoods into small boxes and the hardwood scraps are made into parquet flooring. Planing mills work scraps and broken pieces, unsalable in that form, into boxes for apples, medicines and other articles and into brackets, balusters, rose blocks and small quarter-round moulding.

WHITECAPPERS SHOOT AN INDIANA WOMAN

Mother of Three Children Is Killed in Own Home.

Rockport, Ind., Aug. 2.—Authorities searching for two men for whom warrants have been issued, following the whitecapping outrage here, redoubled their efforts when Mrs. Rettie Coombs, whose home was attacked, died today.

Mrs Coombs was shot as she passed an open window. She had been ordered to come from the house and take her medicine. The woman placed two of her children under a bed and was hurrying to the crib where her infant child slept when shot down.

A dozen men were in the party bent on whipping Mrs. Coombs and two are said to have been identified

GALION WOMAN HIT BY BIG FOUR TRAIN

Hurled from Track, but Escapes with Few Bruises.

Galion, Aug. 2.—When the engine of a Big Four passenger train struck a person walking on the track yesterday morning, the engineer supposed he had killed a man, but when the person found on the side of the track was approached it proved to be Mrs. Mary Brockey, who had donned men's clothes to go blackberrying Although thrown some distance, the woman miraculously escaped with slight bruises.

Ditcher Arrested.

Wilmot Bracey, a ditcher, was arrested Tuesday morning and arraigned before Justice C E Gompf on a charge of defrauding E. Rogers, of Bennett street, out of a board bill of $24. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to sixty days in the Dayton workhouse. The sentence was suspended thirty days to give Bracey a chance to raise sufficient money to pay the board bill and the costs in the case.

INNER SHRINE GIVEN A SHOCK

When Girl Not in "Select 100" Wins Colonel Astor.

NEW YORK SOCIETY SIMPLY PARALYZED

Biggest Catch of Season Has Now Been "Hooked."

Exclusive Members of Gotham Society, Especially Those with Marriageable Daughters, Resort to Smelling Salts and Other Restoratives To Bring Nerves to Accustomed State.

New York, Aug. 2.—The more exclusive members of New York society, especially the matrons with daughters of marriageable age, are using smelling salts and other restoratives in great profusion today to bring their nerves back to their accustomed state The news that Colonel John Jacob Astor, multi-millionaire and the biggest "catch of the season," had been "hooked" by an eighteen-year-old girl whose family was not in the "select 100," picked by the bridegroom's mother as representing "true American society," has simply paralyzed them. Meanwhile, friends of Colonel Astor are not particularly surprised He always had an eye for beauty, and in his new wife he will have one of the most beautiful American girls.

Despite her youth, Miss Madeline Force is wonderfully developed with clear strong features and a wealth of brown hair, a striking figure in any company. She "came out" last winter, but cut little figure in society, which has been disposed not to patronize the Force family until Colonel Astor started paying her marked attentions Then the society leaders who have never been members of the "inner shrine," tried to patronize Miss Madeline, but with small success as she has a will of her own.

It is understood that the wedding will take place early in the fall and that immediately afterward the couple will start on a round-the-world wedding trip.

It was intimated today that Colonel Astor's former wife, Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, who divorced him, will now demand complete possession of their children. Vincent Astor has spent most of his time with his father since the divorce and should Mrs. Willing, as she is now known, try to have him remain with her, a lively legal fight would follow. None of the members of the Astor family would discuss this rumor today.

UTOPIANS ARE SENT TO JAIL

Upton Sinclair and Associates Are Peeved.

ARE FORCED TO WORK ON STATE STONE PILE

Philosophical Anarchist Now Satisfied.

Anarchist Is Prevented from Spreading His Doctrine by Author of "The Jungle" and Followers, and He Has Sinclair Arrested for Violating Sunday Blue Laws by Playing Tennis on the Sabbath Day.

Arden, Del., Aug. 2.—Upton Sinclar, the Socialist author, and ten of his associate dwellers in the Utopian single tax colony here, were a trifle regretful today that they had declined to permit George Brown, the philosophical anarchist, to spread his doctrines as he pleased.

For Sinclair and his friends have been in the Wilmington jail since 9 o'clock last night, and will remain there until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The party fell foul of their own trap. In order to keep Brown from talking at a recent single-tax meeting, Sinclair and other leaders in the colony had him arrested. He served five days on the stone pile at Wilmington because he would not pay a fine inflicted when he demanded the right of free speech. Then he invoked the blue laws of the state and had Sinclair arrested for playing tennis; Professor J. H. Garrod, of the Northeast Manual Training school; Fred Windle, a Philadelphia lawyer; Don Stephens, a millionaire; Harold Ware, Hamilton Ware, Berkely Toby, Frank Leach, Chester Leighthown and Alexander Dubin, for playing ball, and Fred Steinlein for selling ice-cream on Sunday. They refused to pay fines when Judge Robertson found them guilty, and he sentenced them to eighteen hours in jail.

Joke Grows Serious.

Considered a joke by all of the participants, the matter became serious today when it was remembered that an avowed anarchist, who, under oath, testified that he believed in the law, secured a judicial opinion that the Delaware blue laws are legal. The result is likely to be that the laws will be enforced in every section from the state from now on, and all that will be left for the natives to do will be to go to church or for a walk. Street railway systems, steam railways, the telephone and telegraphic system, in fact, every kind of industry, is illegal and can be stopped wherever the laws are enforced.

They will now be enforced everywhere if Sinclair and his associates, who were forced to work on the stone pile today, have their way.

"When I get out," said Sinclair, "I will organize an anti-blue law association. I will hire detectives and see that every man, woman and child in Delaware that violates these laws is prosecuted. I will, if necessary, arrest the judges, lawyers and public officials who play golf on Sunday and send them to jail. I will make these laws so obnoxious the state will have to repeal them."

TWO NEW Y. M. C. A. OFFICERS ARE HERE

C. D. Yates and F. S. Bartholomew Ready for Duty.

C. D Yates, of Pennsylvania, the newly-elected assistant secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., and F. S. Bartholomew, of Gloucester, Massachusetts, the new physical director secured to succeed William Hill, resigned, have arrived in the city to assume their new duties.

Mr. Bartholomew, who arrived in the city late Tuesday night, is married and will move his wife to this city within a few weeks. He has held several prominent positions with some of the largest associations in the East, serving as physical director, and the local association is quite fortunate in being able to secure his services.

Mr. Yates, who has had little experience in the work, has been connected with the association of his home town to some extent. He has just finished a college course and is adapted and well qualified for the work which he will undertake. Both are highly-esteemed young men and are well pleased with what they have seen of their new field.

W. B. JESSOP NOW ON CITY BOARD OF REVIEW

Mr. Jessop Receives Notice of His Appointment.

W. B Jessop, Democrat, was appointed a member of the Marion city board of review by the state board of assessors and appraisers, Monday afternoon. He received notice of his appointment Tuesday.

Mr. Jessop took up his new duties last Wednesday, succeeding S. E. DeWolfe, Republican, who was appointed to the board a little over five years ago. The appointment carries with it a salary of five dollars a day during the time that the board is in session.

A number of aspirants were seeking the much coveted place.

The board now consists of G. H Foster and W. B. Jessop, Democrats, and L. B. McNeal, Republican.

SALOONS MUST PAY LIQUOR TAX

Thirty-Five Newark Men Are Caught in Net.

EVIDENCE GATHERED BY STATE OFFICIALS

Auditor Will Be Ordered To Collect the Tax.

Official Action, Coming at This Time, Is Seized as Powerful Weapon by Newark Citizens Fighting Move To Reelect Atherton Mayor of the City Who Seeks Vindication as to Connection with the Riot.

Columbus, O., Aug. 2.—As a result of secret investigations conducted by state inspectors, thirty-five men who are alleged to be selling liquor illegally in Newark and Buckeye lake, will be forced to pay the Aiken liquor tax, amounting to $1,000 each. State Food and Dairy Commissioner S. E. Strode, whose men gathered the evidence, has certified the thirty-five named to State Auditor Fullington, who, in turn, will proceed to collect through the auditor of Licking county.

On the list is the name of Louis Bolton, recently acquitted of complicity in the lynching of Carl Etherington, the "dry" detective in Newark a year ago, who is generally considered the power behind the movement for Herbert Atherton for mayor.

A Powerful Weapon.

Official action, coming at this time, has been seized as a powerful weapon by citizens fighting Atherton's demands for "vindication" through a return to the office from which he was forced to retire after the riot. Atherton, in recent statements, has indicated the purpose if given a chance to treat law enforcement in the manner which obtained before the riot. He charges "dry" detectives who attempted to raid the speakeasies with entire responsibility for the lynching of Carl Etherington.

Only those places were certified by Strode to State Auditor E. M. Fullington in which his inspectors secured evidence to substantiate other contests similar to that which Newark speakeasy proprietors have carried to the United States supreme court.

It is said the list does not include all places which have paid the federal liquor tax.

MASS MEETING OF THE WOMEN AT A CHURCH

Movement for the Betterment of the City.

SOME THOUGHTS ON PAST CHAUTAUQUA

H. R. Snyder Is Mentioned as Candidate of Those Engaged in the Movement—Mr. Snyder Closes the Program with a Brief Address on Duties of Women.

A mass meeting of the women of the city was held at the Wesley M. E. church, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and was largely attended. The members of the Frances Willard W. C. T. U. attended in a body. Only four men were in the audience.

Rev. H. V. McCleary, pastor of the Wesley M E. church, called the meeting to order and explained the purpose of the gathering. He declared the Chautauqua of the past week was one of the best affairs the city had enjoyed for some time and that the people were not only well entertained, but instructed. At this time, the lessons learned in the Chautauqua should be put in practice, the speaker urged, and the mass meeting was held to, in a measure, crystalize these thoughts in a movement for better homes, better society and better citizens.

Rev Mr. McCleary first presented Rev. G. M. Rourke who spoke on "The Marion Homes." He spoke of taking the benefits of the Chautauqua into daily practice, and referred especially to the address of Captain Hobson. The speaker touched on the white slave traffic, and in closing referred to the slot machines. He said every one should be taken out.

Candidate Named.

Declaring against the practice of women wearing their hats at public gatherings, and against women's attire of the unusual sort, Rev. J. W. Miles next discussed, "Womanhood and Social Betterment." The speaker also referred to the practice of compelling young girls to work in the stores so late Saturday nights, that it is with hesitancy they are asked to go to church, Sunday mornings He also deplored the fact that young men and women roam the streets late at night. He closed with a talk on temperance and referred to H. R. Snyder as "our candidate to the constitutional convention."

Mr. Snyder closed the program with a talk on "Woman as a Citizen and Her Relation to the Polity of the State."

The mass meeting was announced as an initial gathering and later meetings will probably be held.

No man is so religious that he considers dying a pleasure.

JUDGE KINKEAD DOES NOT WISH TO INTERFERE

Does Not Care To Restrain Local Clerk of Courts.

A United Press wire from Columbus, Wednesday, says.

Judge Kinkead made an order in the C., D. & M. receivership case, today, in answer to comment of Judge Daniel Babst concerning the injunction of the Franklin county courts against the clerk of Marion county, restraining him from putting on the records any orders, entries, judgments or decrees in the alleged case of Newton J. Catrow, against the C., D. & M. Railway company.

"I certainly would not desire to restrain the clerk of that court from putting on any orders which Judge Babst may make in that case which tends to interfere with the administration of this trust by this court, which has continued now for two years," the order reads.

Judge William M. Rockel, as master commissioner, is hearing the case of Eli M. West, as receiver of the C., D. & M. Railway company, against John G. Webb as president of the road, at Springfield, today.

Receiver West is seeking judgment of about $400,000 from Webb, alleged to be due the road from him as president of the corporation. Webb will also be asked to give an accounting of all funds used in the construction and maintenance of the road.

A FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN ILLINOIS

Mrs. Cynthia Radebaugh Passes Away Tuesday.

Mrs. Cynthia Radebaugh, who formerly resided in this city, died at the home of her granddaughter at Galesburg, Illinois, Tuesday morning. She was eighty-five years of age and her death was due to old age and complications.

Mrs. Radebaugh was the mother of Miss Zola Radebaugh who up until last spring, conducted a millinery store in the room now occupied by J. H. Rawlings & Son, on west Center street. She was also the grandmother of Walter Brown, of this city.

Mrs. Radebaugh came to this city with her daughter seven or eight years ago and they made their home at the corner of Main and Columbia streets. During her residence here, she made many friends, who will be grieved to learn of her death.

The remains were taken to Mechanicsburg for burial, and the funeral was held at that place, Thursday morning.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE AT UPPER SANDUSKY

Miss Nina Zimmerman and Mr. Rowland R. Hinds.

Miss Nina B. Zimmerman, of Upper Sandusky, and Mr. Rowland R. Hinds, of Ohio City, a son of Joseph D. Hinds, of Caledonia, were united in marriage at the English Lutheran church parsonage at Upper Sandusky, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Thomas performed the ceremony. The young people were unattended.

The bride is a daughter of Henry Zimmerman, of Upper Sandusky, and has a large circle of friends in that city. Mr. Hinds is a brakeman for the Erie Railroad company and runs on local freight between Huntington, Indiana, and this city. They will make their future home in Ohio City.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinds were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hinds of this city, Tuesday evening, and are now guests of the groom's father and sister at Caledonia.

FIVE SMALL BRIDGES ON WILD CAT PIKE

Contract for Work Is Awarded Gus Kohberger.

Wednesday, the county commissioners awarded the contract for constructing five small bridges on the new Wild Cat pike to Gus Kohberger, who was the lowest among six bidders. Kohberger's bids on the various bridges, known as stations, together with the county engineer's estimates, follow:

Station No. 82, engineer's estimate $231, big $195; station No. 17, engineer's estimate $259, bid $228.50; station No. 135, estimate $218, bid $188; station No. 328, estimate $267, bid $228; station No. 192, estimate $265.50, bid $218.50.

Other bidders for the work were J. C. Drake, Haberman & Kull, Cooper & Gillespie, L. E. Strawser and Thomas F. Hurley.

Marion Man on Train.

Attorney Hoke W Donithen was a passenger on the Erie's Cleveland-Pittsburg flyer, Monday afternoon, when it struck an automobile containig three people, two of whom were killed. Mr. Donithen was one of the first out of the train after it stopped, and watched the trainmen lift the burning form of Miss Marguerite Tuller, aged nineteen, of Chicago, off the pilot. Miss Tuller, he says, was burned to a crisp. Mr. Donithen, who arrived home, Tuesday afternoon, says it was the most horrible sight he ever witnessed. The gasoline from the automobile caused the blaze.

Taken to an Asylum.

The many friends in this city of C. Ellsworth Martin, who was formerly in business here, will be grieved to learn that he has lost his mind and is now an inmate of the state asylum at Pontiac, Michigan. He was taken to the institution about two weeks ago, having been sent there from Detroit. Mr. Martin, who was here a few weeks ago, was a well-known traveling man. He was in a private sanatarium at one time.

SEVEN ARE LOST IN GRASS RIVER

While Returning from Sunday. School Picnic.

STEAMER HITS SHELVING ROCK

And Excursionists Are Hurled from the Boat.

Men in Motorboats and Other Small Vessels Rush to Scene of Disaster Near Massena, New York, and Rescue Most of Seventy-Five People Who Are Struggling in Water. Rush Made for Shore.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Carrying the Methodist Sunday school picnic from Massena, the steamer Cyrus was capsized near Brewer's dock, in the Grass river, just below Massena. Seven persons were drowned, as follow:

Misses Parker of Ogdensburg; Mrs. Fritz of Maxville, Ont.; Miss Fregoe and Miss Dewey of Massena, and two boys, named Hackett and Cline, of Massena. The boat is lying capsized in the river. Four bodies have been recovered.

The excursionists were from Massena, Ogdensburg and Watertown, and had spent the day at Cornwall. Leaving Cornwall on the way back to Massena, where the members of the excursion party were to board a train for their home stations, the steamer ran into shallow water before the pilot knew it and crashed full speed into a shelving rock. The craft quickly listed, and while the excursionists hurriedly put on life preservers and jumped into the river, the boat suddenly keeled over.

Rescuing parties, hearing the vessel's whistles of distress, put out from shore and saved many of the person who were floundering in the river. There were many exceptional rescues and instances of heroism, and to the bravery of those who rushed to the scene in motorboats and other small craft is due the fact that there was not greater loss of life.

JUPITER.

Flammarion, the French astronomer, writes to the New York Herald some interesting things about Jupiter, the brilliant planet one sees in the southwestern heavens these evenings. That orb is 310 times heavier than the earth and 1279 times larger. It is not solid like the earth, but is in a liquid condition, in which currents and counter currents are observed. It is in a state of agitation constantly, though one would not think it; so placid it shines up there.

But the remarkable thing about the planet is a great red spot, about 30,000 miles long and 10,000 wide, which seems to have an independent existence, floating about in the liquid surface of the planet. The astronomer thinks that may be great continent forming and that Jupiter is in such a state of transition that some day it will be a planet similar to the earth, with continents, oceans and islands on it. It is doubtless getting ready for the human family after Mars gets through with it. So, when one gazes at the lustrous planet, he may indulge in dreams and visions that will carry him beyond the time when the earth will be as dry and hard as a cannon ball.—Ohio State Journal.

Have Narrow Escape.

Findlay, O., Aug. 2.—Isaac J. Gordon and six passengers had a miraculous escape with their lives, yesterday, when an automobile driven twenty-five miles an hour skidded, turned a somersault in a ditch and, alighting on its wheels, started off again. None of the passengers was thrown from the car.

Woman Freed on Murder Charge.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 2.—"I did it in self-defense. My husband brought other women to the house. He abused me when I protested, and he threatened my life. Then I shot him." That in brief was the plea which secured freedom for Mrs. Mary Sandro, accused of killing her husband, George Sandro. She was discharged in police court.

Governor Dennison's Widow Dies.

Columbus, O., Aug. 2. — Mrs. William Dennison, wife of the war governor of Ohio, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rufus W. Clark, in the Cumberland apartments, after an illness which has lasted for several years. She was 89 years old and death was directly due to the infirmities of age.

Pen Loses Boarder.

Columbus, O., Aug. 2.—Edward Mansfield of Hamilton county, a trusty, escaped from the penitentiary. Warden Jones thinks the man went up into the city, got drunk, and then was afraid to return. He was serving a year's sentence for forgery and had only seven months to serve.

Four Men Are Killed.

Bluefield, W. Va., Aug. 2.—Four miners were killed and nine injured by an explosion a few minutes before midnight last night in the mine of the Standard Pocahontas Coal company at Shannon.

Stains on mirrors and window glass may be removed by an application of spirits of camphor, which leaves a brilliant polish.
